SESSIONS OF CONFERENCE ARE GROWING IN INTEREST AND CROWDS ATTENDING

The "Child Problem", Was Taken Up At Saturday Evening's Meeting

EVERYBODY ATTENDING WAS VERY INTERESTED

When a Prominent Cincinnati Clergyman Addressed the Gathering as to Ways and Means for the Betterment of the Dependent Colored Child----Monday's Program.

The Saturday evening session of the conference was opened by a beautifully rendered solo by Miss Cox, of Granville, who was accompanied by Miss Sabina Hirshberg. The invocation was pronounced by Rev. T. A. Cosgrove, of the Second Presbyterian Church.

The Saturday evening program was devoted to a consideration of the child problem. The first speaker introduced was Rev. R. A Longman, Visitor Children's Home, Cincinnati. In stating his subject, "The Dependent Colored Child," Mr. Longman announced his intention of proving that the negro should bear his own burden, rather than be allowed to continue as a burden and grief to the rest of the human family. By a review of existing conditions, he declared his hope of inciting a sympathy that might tend to the amelioration of such conditions. The environment of the negro has been so widely degraded that the dependent colored child is commonly allowed to drift into delinquency for lack of conditions that will provide for adequate mental, moral and physical training. The State of Ohio cannot afford to close every door to social and intellectual opportunity. It is not unreasonable to believe that we are accepting God's purpose when we maintain the dividing line that he has established; then why not a separate State institution for the dependent colored child, rather than the continuance of the present conditions, under which the few negro children in the homes come to despise their own race. The intimacies resultant from mingling of the races in institutional family can only lead to the unhappiness for the colored child. It is a tragedy that so many who walk our streets are neither white nor black.

There are in Ohio, fifty-five public or semi-public homes for dependent children; in the population of these homes, a population of less than eight per cent is colored, and of this eight per cent almost half are plainly of mixed blood. The only solution of the problem must be the establishment of an independent home for the uplifting of the unfortunates of the black race Such a home could be located in a favorable community, and if such a solution of the problem is considered unsatisfactory, then why the separate colored church, or why the continuance of such a far-reaching influence as Wilberforce University? Our duty to the colored child is clearly to surround him with such influence as will tend to make him an efficient factor in the citizenship of our great commonwealth.

The second address of the evening was "The Child Labor Situation in Ohio and Neighboring States," by Mr E. N. Clopper of Cincinnati, Ohio Valley secretary of the National Child Labor committee The problem in Ohio, he said in opening, is almost entirely one of law enforcement, since the law of Ohio is theoretically among the best If co-operation of social workers with factory inspectors could be secured, a long step in advance would have been taken The enforcement of the eight-hour law has proven to be of especial difficulty Ohio laws are generally supported by those who have any thing to do with the schools, but in Ohio the glass manufacturing interests are largely working in opposition to the interest of the school law, and such conditions also hold in neighboring states, Indiana and West Virginia furnishing conspicuous examples The latter state furnishes one lone factory inspector, with manifold duties.

The spectre of the orphan and widowed mother still looms large, and tolerates the adding of additional burdens to the child already handicapped Ohio has set an example for the nation by provision against the prevalance of such conditions. Compulsory education and child laws must work temporary adversity to a few, but these few the very ones for whose comfort and relief special provision should be made. Ohio laws furnish a satisfactory solution of this difficulty, but one unknown to many social workers In Toledo the fullest benefit of this law is given to children needing such relief as the law offers. Ohio is the first state to pass such provision, and the example has been lately followed by Oklahoma The new Ohio law for the granting of labor certificates goes still farther, and now needs only the restriction of a physical examination, which the law should demand. Massachusetts is the only state imposing such restriction.

The employment of boys as messengers and on street-boys is one which demands attention It has been found that the work of the night messenger is one which enmeshes him in the most evil associations, hence the value of the eighteen-year age limit for such employment

At this point the report of Mr. W H. Stoutt, chairman of the committee on Time and Place, reported that his committee had received invitations from Lancaster, Findlay and Toledo, that a vote by ballot resulted in the recommendation of Toledo as the place of meeting of the next conference On motion, this report was adopted.

The third address scheduled for the evening was on the subject of "The Delinquent Parent," by Judge Samuel L Black of the Juvenile Court, Columbus, and at this point, the President read the following telegram announcing his unavoidable detention by illness The time allotted for this address was therefore devoted to a discussion of the topics presented by the two previous speakers

Sunday morning and evening most of the Protestant pulpits of the city were filled by delegates and representatives of the conference of Charities and Corrections The most important open meeting of the conference was that of Sunday afternoon, when an immense audience crowded the High school Auditorium attracted by the excellence of the program prepared, and by the announcement that Governor Judson Harmon would be present as Honorary Chairman of the meeting the Governor's absence was a great disappointment to the hundreds who were anxious to see him and hear him speak but the rest of the excellently prepared program was carried out without change. Seats on the platform were occupied by prominent workers of the conference, chairmen of various committees, and ministers of the city churches

An especially attractive and unusual feature of the afternoon program was the half hour concert prelude given by the choir of the Girls' Industrial Home, Delaware. The girls of the choir, about thirty in number, were accompanied by their superintendent, Mr S P. Webb, and by Miss Estella Allen, the music director of the school. The elaborate and carefully arranged program, beautifully rendered throughout, gave ample evidence of the musical ability and skilful training resultant in ensemble work deserving of highest praise. The program rendered by the choir was as follows:

I.

a O Shepherd of Israel.....Morrison
b The Contrite Heart .....Ambrose
c One Sweetly Solemn Thought ... . Ambrose
d Rock of Ages ..... Dudley Buck

II.

a The Belles of Seville ..... Jude
b The Night Hath a Thousand Eyes ..... Marston
c Spring Song ..... Mendelssohn
d Mammy Lou ..... Cartwright

At the close of this most pleasing musical program, the invocation was pronounced by Rev. L. C. Sparks of the First Methodist church. In the absence of Governor Harmon, the president, Dr Eyman, then introduced the first speaker, Rev George Stibitz of the Central Theological Seminary, Dayton, the subject for his address being "Impulse and Law."

Mr. Stibitz opened by defining his idea of any charity association as a bridge across a gulf which was never intended to be, and which will eventually close up; but he declared that as long as the kingdom of God is in the formative process, we must have need of discriminating charity. Our Lord's work was the helping of the capable and willing to help themselves; he healed the sick and raised the dead, but we have no records of his actually giving bread to the feed.

In our attitude toward law, we need not so much fear as respect. Confucius's idea that normal man needs no law beyond his own being, is fundamentally correct. Man is as near his creator as a created being can be, and it is because God made man in His own image, that man should glory in living under the law An animal is more free within and

GERMANS OPPOSE RE-ELECTION OF LIEUT. GOV. TREADWAY

Cleveland, Oct. 17.—Germans of Cleveland have declared themselves opposed to the re-election of Francis W. Treadway as lieutenant governor of the state He is reported to have worked against the study of German in the public schools.

At yesterday's meeting it was the unanimous verdict of the delegates to the conference that he ought not to be re-elected this fall

Many of the replies from politicians favored obligatory physical culture in the public schools. This measure is also strongly advocated by the German-American Alliance.

SECTION MAN KILLED ON B. & O. NEAR DILLONS

A bad accident occurred on the C. O division of the B. & O near Dillons Falls, between Toboso and Zanesville, Saturday evening about 5:40, in which one man was killed and several others narrowly escaped death A number of section men who had been engaged at work on the road were returning home on a hand car. Just as they rounded a curve near Dillons Falls the west bound local hit the hand car, hurling the men from it One of the men, Rosa Angella, was almost instantly killed. The body was taken to Zanesville and turned over to the coroner. Not very much is known about the man, save that he has been working on the section for some time

WELLMAN HAS BROKEN ALL RECORDS

Daring Newspaper Man and Balloonist On Way to Europe

WEATHER IS FAVORABLE

And Wellman Is Expected to Drift With the Wind and Save Gasoline.

Siasconsett, Mass., Oct. 17.—With moderate westerly winds blowing steadily the Wellman dirigible is believed to be sailing steadily eastward. The wireless operator here is awaiting word from some ship which will locate the airship. It is now far out of range of the local station, and is not expected to pass near enough to Cape Sable to pick up that station.

The present weather conditions will allow Wellman to drift with the wind and save his gasoline. The last goodbye from Irwin, the America's wireless operator, was sent from the vicinity of the spot in which he picked up Jack Binn's famous C. Q. D message from the ill-fated Republic, two years ago. It is expected that the exact position of the balloon will soon come from some ocean liner that may sight it

Navigators estimate that Wellman was about 700 miles from his starting point at 10 o'clock today. If he gets no farther than he is now Wellman has at least established a new record for flight in a dirigible.

NO NEWS FROM WELLMAN.

New York, Oct 17.—Advices received from the Camperdown, Nova Scotia, wireless station at 10:45 say that they cannot reach Wellman. They think he is heading due East, as the wind favors such a course.

BIG BALLOON RACE STARTED AT ST. LOUIS

St. Louis, Oct 17 —At 4.30 this afternoon the French liner Condor will rise from the aviation grounds here and the international balloon race for the James Gordon Bennett cup will be on Five minutes later the St Louis Club balloon will rise and every five minutes thereafter until the last has started.

AVIATOR CREATES A WORD'S RECORD.

Paris, Oct. 17 —By flying to Brussels and return with a passenger Henry Wynmalen has created a world's record for long distance flight in two days He was contesting for prizes totaling $27,000 The round trip through the air is about 250 miles, which Wynmalen made in 17 hours, 38 minutes and 28 seconds Legagneux, another aviator, started with Wynmalen, but has not yet reached Paris on the return trip

SENATOR DOLLIVER DEAD. A PROMINENT INSURGENT GIVES UP THE STRUGGLE

And Succumbs to the Only Enemy to Which He Would Acknowledge His Final Defeat

PRESIDENT TAFT HAS WIRED HIS CONDOLENCE

The Deceased Senator Was an Ultra-Progressive in Republican Ranks, and Was One of the Foremost Orators in the United States Senate---His Career in Brief

Fort Dodge, Ia., Oct. 17.—United States Senator Jonathan Prentiss Dolliver died at his home Saturday night in the fifty-third year of his age. Dilatation of the heart was fatal to him. He had not been in good health for some months and has been quite ill, but no apprehension was felt for him until last Thursday. Then his wife said he had not enjoyed a vacation in thirty-five years and it was imperative that he should rest.

The son of a Methodist preacher, Senator Dolliver was a sincere and prominent member of that denomination. He was born in what is now West Virginia in 1858 and was graduated in 1875 from West Virginia University Later on, with his father, he removed to Iowa. He was admitted to the bar in 1878, began his political career by being elected to the Fifty-first Congress, was elected to the succeeding congresses up to and including the fifty-sixth, and in 1900 was appointed to the Senate from Iowa to succeed Senator John H. Gear. He was later elected and re-elected, and began the term he is now serving in March, 1907.

A Great Orator.

In the Republican convention of 1900, which nominated Theodore Roosevelt for Vice-President, Senator Dolliver was a prominent candidate for that office until Hanna, Platt and Quay and some others wanted to nominate Mr. Roosevelt. One of the chief arguments used in urging Dolliver's nomination was that in 1896 he was the first man to call William McKinley "the advance agent of prosperity."

A Leading Insurgent.

Senator Dolliver was a leading insurgent in the Senate, but he had high admiration for President Taft, although he was not regarded as a very welcome visitor at the White House.

It was announced Sunday that funeral services for Senator Jonathan P. Dolliver will be held on Thursday at 2 o'clock. The suddenness of Senator Dolliver's death from heart disease while a physician was listening to the irregular beats of the organ with a stethoscope took everyone by surprise.

According to present plans the obsequies will be in charge of Rev. W. H. Spencer, pastor of the First M. E. Church of Ft. Dodge. Bishop Luther B. Wilson, of Pennsylvania, Dr. Frank Gunsaulus, of Chicago; Dr Newell Dwight Hillis of New York City, and Governor B. F Carrol, of Iowa, have been invited to make funeral orations for the senior Senator of Iowa

Everybody in Ft. Dodge is in mourning for the loss of the Town's most noted citizen. The suddeness of the Senator's death caused a shock from which the people have not recovered Saturday evening a little more than an hour before death came Senator Dolliver chatted freely with Mayor S J Bennett, a lifelong friend. Only an hour here his demise Mr Dolliver spoke hopefully of his recovery to District Judge R M Wright, who called to ask after the Senator's health.

During the afternoon Senator Dolliver took a walk in his garden, which has been one of his pleasures He seemed normal in appearance, and talked to several callers in the shade of a large tree where he had formerly rehearsed many of his speeches that had made him famous as an orator. To those who called the Senator talked pleasantly and optimistically.

Hundreds of telegrams of sympathy have poured in on Mrs. Dolliver from all parts of the country. Nearly every member of both Houses of Congress sent condolences. Messages also came from mot of the Governors and from the President, Cabinet officers and other public men.

President Taft's Sympathy.

The following telegram was received by Mrs. J. P. Dolliver from President Taft.

"Mrs. Taft and I extend to you our heartfelt sympathy in your great sorrow. The senate has lost one of its ablest debaters and most brilliant statesmen.

"The country has lost a faithful public servant. W. H. Taft."

Vice President's Message.

Besides this message from the President the following were received:

"I am deeply grieved at the death of your illustrious husband. The loss to his country is very great. His public service has been marked by patriotism, uprightness, courage, industry and rare ability. My long acquaintance with him has deepened my regard into affection. His departure from the Senate circles will be deeply mourned by all. Words are inadequate to express my tenderest sympathy, in which Mrs. Sherman joins.—J. S. Shermann."

MARTIAL LAW DECLARED IN PARIS

Paris, Oct. 17.—Paris is practically under martial law today because of recent bomb outrages. A proposed meeting of railroad strikers was forbidden today, with the assurance that force would be used to prevent it. A bomb was exploded today, but no persons were hurt, at the home of a Nationalist newspaper man. Pinned to the door of the house was a note which read: "First warning from the strikers."

Another explosion in the Ternes quarter injured a street cleaner. Twenty anarchists were arrested for this. The Socialist press is lambasting Premier Briand and the rest of the papers are upholding him.

WILL ARREST THE OPERATOR

Augusta Ga., Oct. 17.—The telegraph operator of the C. & W. C. railroad at McCormick, N. C. will probably be arrested, following a wreck last night, in which five persons were killed and 17 injured. It is said that the operator wired after the collision that he was so busy selling tickets that he forgot to stop the southbound train for orders, and it crashed into the northbound at full speed, two miles south of McCormick.

B. & O. MACHINISTS WILL GO TO WORK IN A FEW DAYS

Although nothing definite has been given out by the striking Baltimore and Ohio machinists, it is stated that there is some objection to the proposition made by General Superintendent of Motive Power Harris Nothing however is known as a certainty, but will there be until the vote of the entire system has been calculated. It is however, the general opinion that the men will all be at work again in a few days.

In Writing Your Want Ad Do Not Use an Unnecessary Word. Nor Omit a Necessary One!

A want ad may be too short as well as too long. There ought to be, always, a rational brevity—but this should not preclude a touch of "human interest"—the statement of such facts as will give the advertisement a certain DEFINITENESS instead of vagueness

CHIEF BENDER WINS FIRST GAME FOR ATHLETICS

Shibe Park, Pa., Oct. 17.—Before a crowd of 25,000 people and surrounded by a din of noise such as has not been heard in this city for a long time, the Athletics and Cubs clashed in the opening game of the world's series today. Both teams received great ovation. Just before the game the umpires had a row with moving picture men who had their machines back of the plate. The picture men appealed to the national commission and won out.

HERMANN'S DEFEATED ON SUNDAY

THE ALL STARS HAVE LITTLE TROUBLE IN DEFEATING AMATEUR TEAM.

Stars Were Composed of Professional Players— Most of Them One Time Molders.

Almost like a page from baseball history of 1907 was the game at Wehrle Park Sunday afternoon, when the All Stars were matched against the Hermanns easily defeated them by the score of 6 to 2. With one exception, L. Allen in left garden, the Star lineup was composed of professional players, most of them old time Molders. The game served to demonstrate the difference between organized and amateur base ball, and it was thoroughly enjoyed by the fans.

There was a good crowd present and while a good melee was expected, yet most of the fans went to the yard for the purpose of seeing old time favorites in action again. The only man in the professional lineup who had not worn a Newark uniform during some season was Pete Mauger, who did the twirling for the Stars and worked in his usual first class form.

Pete had everything, and as he fanned man after man who faced him fans remembered how he treated the Molders in the same style during the past season. He did not exert himself to any extent and his control was good. In the ninth inning he surrendered the mound to Sandy Murray, who had been playing second. Jake Winters did the heaving for the Hermanns and after the opening innings, when he was a trifle weak, he settled down and pitched good baseball.

As each of the professional players stepped to the plate for the first time he was given an ovation that showed him that neither he nor his work for Newark in the past had been forgotten. There was one disappointment, and that was because Al. Schweitzer failed to show up to hold down the middle precinct job. Snyder was switched to that field and Allen was given his old time job in left.

Doc Abbott looked natural in right field and during the game only had one chance, which he handled nicely. On first Gygli played in his usual form and figured in the only double play of the game a snappy affair that the fans much appreciated. McCarthy, who did the bulk of the catching for the Molders the last of this season, was played at short and his work there was fast and sure, while he led the Stars in hitting, getting three drives out of his five trips to the plate.

Wratten, now with Columbus and former manager of the Molders, was on third and played a beautiful game. Harry Lake, catcher for Chillicothe, did the backstop work and caught a pretty game, showing that he has the making of a catcher. Allen, as has been said, was the only man in the lineup that was not a professional.

The Stars made a fast start and before they were stopped in the first inning had crowded two runners over the plate. Abbott, first man up, was walked and on Snyder's sacrifice he went to second, reaching third on a passed ball. Murray flied out to Kennedy, just back of second, and Doc stuck to second, but he scored a moment later when Gygli clouted over third for two bags. McCarthy's single over short scored Gygli.

Allen struck out in the third, but Lake reached when Patton fought the ball. Mauger doubled and scored him, but Pete died on second, for neither Abbott nor Snyder could connect.

In the third the Stars counted twice after Murray was out on a roller. Gygli walked and stole second and scored when McCarthy singled over second. McCarthy pilfered the keystone sack and scored when Wratten doubled to left.

The Hermanns avoided a shutout in the second inning when McDermott scratched a single over first that Murray tried to nab and couldn't. On Huffman's double and Lake's failure to hold the relayed ball McDermott scored. In the seventh the Hermanns added another to their tally string when Laudenslager led off with a two brick wallop to left that Allen misjudged. McDermott's single scored him.

The final scoring was done in the eight round, when the Stars counted again for good measure. McCarthy singled, stole second and on McCarthys error, which placed Wratten on first, he went to third. L. Allen whiffed out, but the squeeze play was put on, and as Lake bunted, McCarthy crossed. Lake's speed saved him and he was safe at first and immediately stole second. Mauger was called out on strikes.

The Stars will play the C. M. A. team at Wehrle Park next Sunday afternoon. The score:

CONFIDENT

ARE BOTH MANAGERS AS TO THE OUTCOME OF WORLD'S SERIES.

Which Begins in Philadelphia Today, Mack and Chance Give Opinions As to the Outcome.

Philadelphia, Oct. 17.—With practically all America looking toward Philadelphia today, breathlessly awaiting the first world's championship clash, both managers express confidence in their teams.

Frank Chance says he will be the most surprised man of the bunch if the Cubs don't come out victors. He would not say who was to pitch, but intimated Overall might if he looks all right in warming up.

Connie Mack says the Athletics will win unless the Cubs are better than they ever were. He says that his team is 25 per cent better than Detroit in her pennant winning day.

At the park the bleacher seats were filled by noon. The gates were opened at 11 o'clock, at which time there were 10,000 fans outside. Many had slept on the sidewalks all night to hold their place in line.

Ticket speculators have received as high as $50 for choice grand stand seats. The 10,000 circus steats promised for center field had not arrived at 10 o'clock, and the national commission went up in the air. They will lose some easy money unless they rescind their order against the spectators standing in the field. The normal capacity of the park is 24,000.

B. & O. CLERKS WIN

The B. & O. Clerks' team won another game Sunday on the Y. M. C. A. grounds, defeating a picked team from the village east of Newark. Camp, pitcher for the C. M. A. team, pitched for Clay Lick and was hit for 15 bingles, among them being a home run by Spence. As usual, the Clerks won the game by heavy hitting. Score:

CARLOADS OF FISH PLANTED IN OHIO INTERIOR WATERS

Columbus, Oct. 17.—"There are some good times coming for the anglers who frequent the inland streams of Ohio," said State Fish and Game Warden John C. Speaks Saturday upon his return from Sandusky, where he spent the week superintending the sending out of a great many carloads of fish for planting in the interior rivers and lakes.

"It was a fine lot of fish," said he. "They are large fish, netted out of the lake, and most of them will spawn next year in their new homes. It means that these streams and ponds will be rapidly stocked with fine fish, and if the general public will co-operate with the state fish and game warden to prevent illegal taking of fish, the stock ought to last permanently."

Later on the department will plant the output of the fish hatcheries now in operation. This will run into the millions, and while the firsh so planted will not be of useable size for several years, the stock in the streams will be materially increased just the same. General Speaks will be busy for several weeks superintending this work.

"The weather has been too mild so far for the commercial fall fishing in Lake Erie," said he. "The fishermen have their nets out, but are taking few fish yet. Of course they get some, but the fish remain out in the deep water until it gets colder. With the first blowup of weather they will begin to run toward the shallow water and then the harvest will begin with the fishermen."

General Speaks expects to make the same arrangements that he had last year with the commercial fishermen in the late fall fishing, to get spawn for hatching in the state hatcheries.

OLD SORES DUE TO DISEASED BLOOD

Every symptom of an old sore suggests diseased blood. The inflammation, discharge, discolored flesh, and the fact that local applications have no permanent effect toward healing the ulcer, shows that deep down in the system there is a morbid cause for the sore. But more convincing proof that bad blood is the cause for these places is furnished by the fact that even removing the sore or ulcer by surgical operation does not cure; they always return. Nature will heal any sore if the blood is pure and healthy, but until the circulation is cleansed of all impure matter and supplied with nourishing and plasmic qualities the infected condition of flesh is OBLIGED to remain. S.S.S. heals Old Sores in a perfectly natural way. It goes into the blood, removes the impurities and morbid matters, adds nourishing qualities to this vital fluid, and brings about the very conditions that are necessary before any sore can heal. S.S.S. is a perfect blood purifier, acting directly on the circulation through the stomach and digestive members. Its use makes rich, red, healthy blood, which nourishes all flesh tissues instead of infecting them with the virulent matter which keep old sores open. Special book on Old Sores and any medical advice free.

IN SOCIAL CIRCLES

Mrs. J. R. Stevens was delightfully surprised Thursday evening at her home on Madison avenue by a number of friends, it being her birthday anniversary. The evening was spent in music and games, the prize being captured by Mr. Wills. At 10:30 a dainty lunch was served to the following: Mr. and Mrs. A. Settles and Master Laton Garrison, Mr. and Mrs. John McKnight and daughter and son Emily and Lester, Mr. and Mrs. Wills and daughter Ruth and Onie, Mr and Mrs. Thomas Warner, Misses Alice Mitchell, Emma Betts Edna Hass, Messrs. Clifford Hockley, Harry Warner, Mr. and Mrs. Stevens and family Ora, Clara, Bertha, Clyde and Earl. They departed at a late hour, having a most enjoyable time.

UNTIED—PETTYCOURT.

Saturday evening at six o'clock Rev. L. C. Sparks joined in marriage Mr. Herman J. Untied, an employe of the Huber bakery, and Miss Grace Pettycourt. They are highly esteemed young people who have many friends that will be glad to extend best wishes. Mr. and Mrs. Untied will reside in this city.

Mr. and Mrs. R. L. Williams of Maple avenue entertained with a 6 o'clock dinner of pretty appointments Sunday evening, out of compliment to Attorney E. F. O'Neil and H. C Wine and their families of Zanesville. Covers were spread for ten guests.

A delightful affair was given at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Varner of Fallsburg on Sunday, when a number of young friends conveyed in carriages reached their beautiful country home. Dinner and supper were served which were greatly enjoyed by the guests and in the afternoon other social features were enjoyed by the following guests: Miss Anna Varner, Miss Ella Varner, Mrs. Eula Beckham, Miss Gleneva Beckham, Miss Alice Tullett, Mr. and Mrs. Brant Ashcraft, Miss Blanche Varner, Miss Margaret M. Jenkins, and Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Varner.

Mr. and Mrs. Val Phillips of Newton township entertained Sunday afternoon the following guests, honoring the sixteenth birthday anniversary of their daughter, Miss Lulu: Misses Lyda and Alice Wilson, Helen Gleckler, Blanch Nutter, Pearl and Unis Wilson, Ava and Treva Nutter, Lucinda Wilson, Miss Lulu Phillips and Mr. and Mrs. Val Phillips.

Music and various out-door games furnished the afternoon's pleasure and at four o'clock a dainty repast was served. The guests upon their departure had many best wishes for the guest of honor for many more happy anniversaries.

Mrs. J. Lewis Myer, nee Charlein Woolson was delightfully entertained by the members of her club Saturday evening with a dinner in the parlors of the Plymouth Congregational church, following which all went to the home of Miss Lillian Rugg in West Locust street where progressive euchre was enjoyed, the prize being awarded to Miss Besse Taafel, who graciously presented the gift to the bride The guests then gave Mrs. Myer a shower of many beautiful pieces of linen.

In the party were Mrs. Myer, Misses Ethel and Edith Woodward, Amy Alspach, Emma Kammerer, Lillian Kammerer, Rhea Ingler, Helen Redman, Beese Taafel, Jesse Sweeting, Helen Pigg, Lillian Rugg.

BELL-HOCH.

Miss Stella Hoch, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. Hoch and Mr. John Bell were united in marriage at 8 o'clock Sunday morning at the English Lutheran parsonage by Rev. C. C. Root. Following the ceremony the bridal party repaired to the home of the bride's parents in Rice street, where a wedding dinner was served in the dining room, where the table was elaborately decorated in smilax, roses and dahlias.

The bride looked beautiful in a gown of white batiste and lace trimmings and carried bride's roses. She presented each guest with a flower from her bouquet. The groom is a molder at the Wehrle foundry, and in the afternoon a quartet from the Molders' Union serenaded the happy couple.

Mr. and Mrs. Bell went to housekeeping in their new home in Cambria street, where they are now at home to their friends.

The guests at the wedding were Mr. and Mrs. J. Bell, Mr. Henry Lindner, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Yantz, Miss Nora Lindner, Mr. Joe Church, Miss Anna Herold, Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Spees, Miss Mary Bell, Mr. Franklin Bell, Marion, Henry and Daris Yontz. The out-of-town guests were Mr. and Mrs. Joe Hoch, Mr. N. Hoch, Mr and Mrs. Willis Stuber Mr. Fred Bricker, all of Columbus.

The Five Points

HEART and HOME TALKS by Barbara Boyd

Little Problems of The Home.

A School-girl's Problem.

Many a little schoolgirl is facing with rather wistful eyes a problem which her inexperience doesn't know how to solve. She stands alone at recess and sees all the other girls playing, or she sits at her desk pretending to study, but hungrily watching the fun going on. She comes and goes with scarcely a welcoming nod from her schoolmates, certainly with none of the ecstatic greetings she hears some of the girls receive. She wants to be in it with the girls, but she doesn't know how to accomplish this. It is all the harder if she comes from a home where she has reigned queen in the hearts of her father and mother. She cannot understand why in this new world she is not accorded the same place.

It is a problem it will do the little schoolgirl a lot of good to solve. It is a lesson of as much value to her as any she will glean from the books she carries under her arm.

She must prove her worth in this new world. In the home, she is loved because she is who she is. She is loved in spite of her faults. In the school-world, she must be likable to be liked. If she succeeds in making her impression here, she will succeed when she goes out into the larger world beyond the school gates. Even if she fails in winning the regard of her schoolmates, her very failure may help her to success later, if she uses it as she should.

It is indeed a big and a vital problem facing many a schoolgirl just now. Parents can help much to solve the problem happily. If they recognize how much more there is to a girl's school life than the mere studies, they can by sympathetic interest and counsel help many a girl to win the place she longs for in her schoolmates' hearts, and thus to go on to the larger world with confidence because so far, she has been a success.

To be one with her schoolmates, a girl must enter into their interests. She must contribute her share both to upholding the good name of the class by being a good student, and to the fun that is going. Girls are so full of life, so bubbling over with high spirits, that as a rule, the most of them care more for a good time than they do for their lessons. The girl who provides good times in the way of suggesting jolly games at recess, or by inviting the girls to her home after school, or by getting up jollifications of some kind, is apt to be popular. But if this is all she does, it will not be a popularity that lasts, or that is widespread. Parents, in time will object, schoolmates will be forbidden to her home, and she will defeat the very end she aims to accomplish.

The girl who aspires to be a favorite must be a good student, so that the other girls will admire her and be proud that she belongs to their class. But she mustn't be priggish or conceited about it. She must enter with as much zest into their interests as she does into their studies. She must be alive all over. She must be honorable, and straight, and clean in all her dealings with her chums. Under it all, must be a foundation of kindliness, a willingness to help the girl who is "slow" with her lessons, a friendliness, but not an attitude of pity, toward the girl who is poor, or who doesn't dress as well as the others.

It isn't always easy for a girl to do these things. Moral strength comes only with hard fought battles. But even in school days, a beginning can be made to take one's own stand and to hold it, to be true to one's convictions regardless of the gibes or frankly expressed opinions of the other girls. And how frank and how strong are the opinions of school girls! How their words and actions do cut sometimes!

Little by little, even the shyest girl can thus make her impression; at first, by a kindly act here, a bright good-morning there, a suggestion to some small group needing a leader. In time, this tells, and before she knows it she has a host of friends. The schoolroom wakes up some day to find that they all like her, and to acclaim her the popular girl of her class. And this is the popularity, too, that lasts. She has bound each girl to her by some real tie, and some of the friendships thus formed may brighten the whole of her after life.

The cause must be removed. Stop the coffee and use well-made

POSTUM

If the change brings good digestion, clear brain, steady nerves and that feeling of perfect poise and comfort, you'll know.

"There's a Reason" for

BEGAN YOUNG

Had "Coffee Nerves" from Youth.

"When I was young I began using coffee and continued up to the last six months," writes a Texas girl.

"I had been exceedingly nervous, thin and very sallow. After quitting coffee and drinking Postum about a month my nervousness disappeared and has never returned. This is the more remarkable as I am a primary teacher and have kept right on with my work.

"My complexion now is clear and rosy, my skin soft and smooth. ... [illegible]

"Before beginning its use I had suffered greatly from indigestion and headaches; these troubles are now unknown.

"The change from coffee to Postum was made without the slightest inconvenience, did not even have a headache. Have known coffee drinkers who were visiting me to use Postum a week without being aware that they were not drinking coffee.

"I have known several to begin the use of Postum and drop it because they did not boil it properly. After knowing how it should be prepared they have tried it again and pronounced it delicious."

CASE DEFEATED DENISON TEAM

Cleveland, O., Oct. 17.—Playing old-fashioned football for whatever gains were made, Case defeated the lighter Denison team Saturday 15 to 3. A place kick after Becker and Black had carried the ball up the field in the second quarter, was Denison's only score. Black once intercepted a Case forward pass and carried it back 15 yards, but to no avail. Line-up:

SIDE ISSUES TO SAVE GRAFTERS AND ELECT DICK

The Legislature that was chosen in 1905, when Governor Pattison was elected, had a Democratic majority in the Senate and a Republican majority in the House. It was the Senate that began the probe at Cincinnati under the Drake committee by which George B. Cox and his machine grafters were caught in their big stealings But the Republican House refused to cooperate with the Senate in pushing the investigation and the Republican State Auditor refused to allow the payment of the necessary expense bills for conducting the same for the reason that both branches did not concur in the proceeding The same failure will occur again now to uncover the many graft transactions that have been kept covered up and the grafters will again escape punishment, notwithstanding the exposures that have been made under Governor Harmon. This is why the Republican machine bosses and their organs are making such desperate efforts to inject side issues into the campaign. It is their only hope to elect one or both branches of the Legislature, so as to save the grafters from prosecution and re-elect Dick to the United States Senate.

In the desperate effort to bring a soul of music and harmony into the wildly discordant Republican campaign the fair daughter of Secretary of Agriculture Wilson will sing while her papa delivers soothing sermons

THE CANAL SCANDAL

The most recent graft exposures relate to the canals of Ohio, which have been under control of Republican state boards for years These exposures result from investigations made by a Democratic chief engineer appointed by Governor Harmon in May of this year to succeed a Republican chief engineer who has been in that office 20 years

Governor Harmon could not insert a probe into canal scandals sooner for the Republican engineer whose term expired in May was one of the holdovers appointed by Governor Harris confirmed by the Republican senate the week Governor Harmon was inaugurated

When there was a Tariff Commission Congress threw its report in the waste basket and passed a bill according to its own liking The outside commissions are just as indifferent to Congress as Congress is to them The Tariff Board announces that it cares nothing for the report of the Mann special committee of the House of Representatives and will investigate the wood pulp business for itself

Mr. Denman was attorney general two months under Governor Harris by appointment before his present term began That was two months before Judson Harmon became Governor to back him Mr Denman didn't find any of the graft he is talking about now. Do you understand?

It is boasted that the Payne-Aldrich tariff has increased the revenues of the government. By the same token it has lightened the purse of every house-keeper in the land.

Appeal is made to Democrats and Independents to vote for candidates for the Legislature who will support Governor Harmon in the warfare on graft and grafters. None but Democratic candidates can be trusted and the Legislature must be Democratic in both branches to give the Governor the necessary support.

CONFERENCE

Between Governor Harmon Attorney General Denman and Chief Engineer Marker Was Held.

Columbus, Oct. 17.—A short conference between Governor Harmon, Attorney Gen. Denman, chief engineer Marker, and the head of the detective agency which has been collecting evidence for Marker took place this morning. The general nature of the graft evidence was outlined and it was decided to hold another meeting tomorrow to decide upon a method of taking up the probe.

None of the board members were invited to the conference although they were around the state house all morning.

THE ROUSING DEMOCRATIC COMMITTEE MEETING SATURDAY

Prof. Johnson of Denison University Urged Democrats to Line Up for Gov. Harmon and the Whole Ticket.

The Advocate account of the meeting of the Democratic Central and Executive committees on Saturday was necessarily brief and merely described the nomination of Robbins Hunter to fill the vacancy in the office of Probate Judge The paper went to press before the meeting was concluded

The meeting was the most largely attended and exhibited the greatest enthusiastic interest of all the other splendid meetings that have been held since this remarkable campaign began

The various committeemen brought most encouraging reports from all the precincts and all things point to a full and complete Democratic vote being polled Democrats are astir in all parts of the county.

Prof Johnson of Denison University made an extended talk, telling of his personal knowledge and appreciation of Governor Harmon and pointing out the importance of this election as to its influence in shaping the action of the Democratic party in the nation in the immediate future The Professor also showed the importance of giving Governor Harmon a Democratic Legislature and urged every Democrat to line up for EVERY MAN on the ticket. He furthermore impressed the importance of getting out and polling the full strength of the Democratic vote in Licking county To say that the reception accorded Prof Johnson and his address was enthusiastic is putting it very mildly Everybody was proud of Prof Johnson and his talk and he was cheered to the echo

He was followed by David Sharp of the state committee, who was sent here to offer suggestions as to the manner of perfecting an organization. He complimented the Democracy of Licking county on what he saw and heard at the meeting and said he would carry back to Columbus the report that the Licking county Democrats needed no instruction along that line, that the instructions we had been sent to us with had actually been complied with, and all that was left for him to do was to advise everybody to take heed of the admirable advice of Professor Johnson and do as he suggested to get together for the whole ticket and stand together for it until the last vote was polled. He assured his hearers that if our Democrats do this a victory awaits them that will have in it "glory enough for all."

Other speakers addressed the meeting, among whom was W D Fulton, whose rallying talk highly pleased every one present.

The next meeting of the committee will be held on October 29

DEADLY PARALLEL DRAWN BY GOV. JUDSON HARMON AS TO THE REAL GRAFT

Showing That Probe Under His Administration Was Conscientious While Those Under Republican Rule Were More Or Less of a Farce.

Cincinnati, Oct. 17.—It was to an overflowing and highly sympathetic audience that Governor Judson Harmon spoke Saturday night in opening the Democratic campaign in Hamilton county. In his address he devoted himself largely to local affairs, with which his auditors were familiar, and all the points he hammered home were cheered and cheered again.

Thousands protested when he essayed to close his speech and compelled him to go on until he ceased at last through sheer exhaustion, having been campaigning since daybreak Saturday morning.

Though seats and accommodations had been provided for 4000 people in the great tent at York and Freeman avenues, it was all too small to accommodate those who came. The side walls were rolled up and hundreds heard him from the outside of the canopy. So interested were his listeners that no one moved during all the time that he spoke—the highest compliment possible to pay a public speaker.

In his address Governor Harmon drew a parallel between the conditions found by the Drake investigating committee here in 1906 and those which he encountered at Columbus when he took up the charges of graft and corruption in the state treasury, and he made the declaration that there was a "pipe line" between the Cincinnati Trust Company here and the cash box in the capitol In support of this allegation he read the famous letters found by State Treasurer Creamer in his office upon assuming control, which related to the transfer of $200,000 from that institution in 1905 at the time when the official examination of the treasury took place under the law.

In this connection he charged the local Republican papers with having suppressed the publication of these letters and made this remark, which the crowd applauded lustily:

"Now that I remember, the editor of one of them failed to publish a certain speech which his brother made at Akron!"

Coming down to later things, he asserted that it was the Hamilton county delegation in the present assembly that helped to defeat his demand for the enactment of the one per cent tax limit to apply upon the increased valuations of real estate under the quadrennial assessment law. The same legislators, he asserted, endeavored to take off the bonding limit for Cincinnati, and while he was averse to doing anything that would prevent the beautification of this city, he vetoed the bill. His reason was that the people should be given the right to say what they should be called upon to spend.

Incidentally, he referred to the fact that it was the same political crowd that some years ago tried to sell the Cincinnati Southern railroad for a pitiful sum. The retention of it was the proof that a valuable asset might have been given away for a mere song.

Probably the greatest hit of the evening was his humorous dressing down of Congressman Nicholas Longworth, who is campaigning the state in company with Warren G. Harding the Republican nominee for governor.

Referring to the fact that "poor Nick," as he termed him, was going about demanding that he (the governor) should discuss national issues thereby seeking to gain a national reputation for himself, the speaker dryly remarked: "It would be better for Nick to come home and discuss local issues." The great throng fairly roared at this palpable hit."

Still another hit that was lustily cheered was the reference to the fact that the clustering suburbs about Cincinnati refused to be united to her, a condition which he deplored, but which was due to the situation that was now existing in this city.

All through his address he appealed for the election of the Hamilton county ticket as a means toward holding up his hands at the state capitol, special emphasis being laid upon the request for the re-election of Prosecuting Attorney Harry T. Hunt, whom he declared was in the same situation as himself—working alone and unaided in the midst of political enemies.

Next to the governor, Prosecutor Hunt was the greatest favorite of the crowd, and his plea was received with thunders of applause.

Other speakers at the meeting were Atlee Pomerene of Canton the nominee for lieutenant governor, who was received in a fashion that must have been comforting to him; Alfred G. Allen, the nominee for congress in the Second district, who once more challenged Judge Herman P. Goebel to reply to questions relating to his congressional record, and John Weld Pack who acted as the chairman of the meeting and introduced the other orators.

Mr. Pomerene devoted himself to any exposition of the recently-discovered canal grafting at Columbus, and being a fiery and compelling orator, had his auditors following him with repeated applause. The peppery fashion in which he went after Warren G. Harding, the gubernatorial nominee, on account of his connection with George B. Cox, and his denunciation of tampering with the courts brought some of them to their feet.

For Secretary of State

CHARLES H. GRAVES,
Oak Harbor, Ottawa County.

Charles H. Graves, Democratic candidate for secretary of state, was born on a farm in Ottawa county, Ohio, June 24, 1872. He worked on his father's farm, going to country school in the winter, until he took up a course of study in the Oak Harbor high school, where he graduated in 1889. He then completed a course of study in the law department of the University of Michigan, and was admitted to practice in June, 1893.

Mr. Graves began the practice of law immediately after his admission to the bar at Oak Harbor, in Ottawa county, and from the beginning he has been a successful lawyer. He was elected to the office of prosecuting attorney of his county in 1900 and served for six years, and he has been counsel for the village in which he lives continuously since his admission to the bar. He has been successful in the management of the interests of his clients and has obtained the confidence and good will of the citizens of the county in which he lives. He is president of the First National bank of Oak Harbor.

Resolution of Respect By Dem. Committee

At the meeting of the Democratic Committees on Saturday the following resolutions of respect for Mr. Frank Egan of Jersey township was adopted:

Be it resolved by the Democratic County Central Committee that its chairman, James J. Hill, be appointed a committee of one to convey to Mr. Frank Egan of Jersey Township an expression of its sympathy with Mr. Egan in his present ill health; that while it accepts Mr Egan's resignation, it is done with great sorrow and regret; and be it further resolved that this committee desires to express its appreciation of Mr. Egan's unswerving fidelity to Democratic principles in the past, his many services to the Democratic party and his worth and integrity as a citizen.

LARGE MEETING LEMERT POST.

One of the largest and most interesting meetings that has been held by Lemert Post, No. 71, G. A. R., for a long time, was that held on Sunday afternoon. There was not only a big attendance of the old veterans, but there were many of their friends in attendance. The meeting was called to order by Post Commander Rufus Putnam and a most delightful program, consisting of musical selections and recitations, was carried out. Past Department Commander Amos Huffman of Wilkington and State Chorister J. H Jinks of Jackson, were present and added much to the interest of the program.

CURES COUGHS

After Ordinary Preparations Fail—Wonderful New Mixture Made at Home.

An investigating chemist of national reputation just recently discovered in a compound known to the medical world as essence mentho-laxene a most wonderful virtue as a curative, laxative cough syrup, and the best part of it is, it can be made at home about 8 times cheaper than one can buy labeled cough syrups. It immediately relieves the severest cases of asthma, bronchitis, coughs and chronic colds on the lungs, and it effects a cure, too, because it has a laxative action when 8 or 10 doses are taken daily. In very short order it will loosen the tightest cough and one can feel it "taking hold" in its curative action. Obtain of the druggist, or have him order from wholesale firm 2 1-2 ounces essence mentho-laxene. Empty it into a pint bottle. Make a syrup with a pint of sugar and a half pint of water, stir and let cool. Then fill up the bottle with syrup shake well and take a teaspoonful 8 to 10 times daily, or as needed. Give children less according to age. It is very pleasant to take.

NEWARK TEAM SHOWED FORM AT MT. VERNON

DEFEATED THEIR OPPONENTS BY ONE TOUCHDOWN IN SNAPPY CONTEST.

Local Squad Shows Great Defensive Ability But Offensive Work Was Bad.

Contrary to the expectations of the most sanquine supporters of Newark H. S., the colors of the Mt. Vernon High School were lowered by the local eleven at Mt. Vernon Saturday by a score of 6 to 0.

It was a great victory and well deserved. Not a football enthusiast in the city thought before the contest that Newark had much chance of winning, but the unexpected happened, bring to the football glory of the N. H. S. the second victory of the season.

The team had to play against great odds. The referee did not know the rules and the crowd was on the field of play during the whole game. Nevertheless the Newark boys kept plugging away and won out in the last quarter of play.

The next game will ge played with Zanesville Friday afternoon and a large crowd is expected to attend the game. Lineup:

Lungs Declared Sound—Life Insurance Granted.

If you knew a remedy that really had cured Tuberculosis; that had saved from death quite a number of people, would you try to get Consumptives interested in it and induce them to take it; or, would you say nothing about it, for fear of giving offence?

We know the medicine. We know the people cured—some of them. We have the stories of cure of many—and affidavits from some. We advertise Eckman's Alterative to tell those who have lung disease what has been done by its use. Investigate the following:

1618 W. Dauphin St., Phila., Pa.

Gentlemen: "On the evening of May 13, 1907, I had five hemorrhages from the right lung. My hemorrhages kept up for one week—I had twenty-eight in all. Septic pneumonia developed. My doctor told me I had better go to another climate, as my left lung had also become affected. About that time I met Howard Klotz, 1619 Susquehanna Ave., this city, who had hemorrhages several years ago and who was cured by Eckman's Alterative. I started to take Eckman's about the latter part of August, 1907. My appetite improved at once and in about two weeks I started to gain weight. I improved steadily. Later, a very bad lameness developed in my right leg and I commenced to get a lump on my right hip. My doctor told me I was getting a tubercular abscess and that it was affecting the sciatic nerve. The lameness and lump gradually disappeared. Have not had any trouble of that nature since.

Since my recovery about a year ago, I was accepted for life insurance, after two examinations by a company that had previously rejected me.

I have advised several people to take Eckman's and those who took it faithfully had the same results as myself."

(Signed Affidavit) CHAS. MORGAN.

Eckman's Alterative cures Bronchitis, Asthma, Hay Fever; Throat and Lung Affections. Ask for booklet of cured cases and write to the Eckman Laboratory, Philadelphia, Pa., for additional evidence. For Sale by all leading druggists and Erman & Son, drugstore, Newark, O.

The Restaurant Piccolo.

Writing from Dresden, an American says: "There is at least one thing in a German restaurant for which one would look in vain in our country. That is the piccolo. You may think that I mean a musical instrument and that any orchestra in any country might have one of these, but you are wrong. My piccolo, the one at the restaurant, is a human being. He is a boy twelve to fifteen years old, who assists the regular waiters. He wears the regulation waiter's costume and looks funny in his spiketail coat. He is as solemn as a funeral, knows how to extract a tip and for the high privilege of retaining his place and taking his first degree as a waiter must endure much abuse at the hands of the head waiter and his underlings. He is a funny little fellow, this piccolo, who because of his appearance could never prosper in our country."—New York Tribune.

Trade In Cobwebs.

In Europe, especially in France and Germany, there exists quite a trade in cobwebs to be applied to bottles of wine thought to call for that additional evidence of age. The dealer who furnished cobwebs to the wine sellers has likewise a liquor that softens and colors the cork to make it assume the stains of time. These cobwebs are not spread upon the bottles without due preparation. They are previously steeped in gum in order that they may the more readily adhere to the bottle. When they have been laid upon the bottle a little soot is sprinkled upon them, which final touch completes the desired appearance of great age.—New York Press.

SAYS QUININE WILL NOT CURE A SEVERE COLD

You will distinctly feel your cold breaking up and all the Grippe symptoms leaving after taking the very first dose.

It is a positive fact that Pape's Cold Compound, taken every two hours, until three consecutive doses are taken, will end the Grippe and break up the most severe cold, either in the head, chest, back, stomach or limbs.

It promptly relieves the most miserable neuralgia pains, headache, dullness, head and nose stuffed up, feverishness, sneezing, sore threat, running off of the nose, mucous catarrhal discharges, soreness, stiffness and rheumatic twinges.

Pape's Cold Compound is the result of three years' research at the cost of more than fifty thousand dollars and contains no quinine, which we have conclusively demonstrated is not effective in the treatment of colds or grippe.

Take this harmless compound as directed, with the knowledge that there is no other medicine, made anywhere else in the world that will cure your cold or end grippe misery as promptly and without any other assistance or bad after-effects as a 25-cent package of Pape's Cold Compound which any druggist in the world can supply.

BOTTLE COMPANY'S PLANT IS NOT RUNNING FULL

Newark glass blowers object to the statement made in Friday's Advocate in which they claim the inference led some to believe that The American Bottle company's plant was running full force. The Advocate man was told today that there were but two furnaces out of a total of six in operation now. This is less than fifty per cent of the plant's capacity. The statement was also made that out of approximately 300 glass blowers in the local branch of the glass blowers' union, only about 120 are now employed.

A wife should be a man's helpmeet, especially when it comes to help meeting the bills.

Sore Throat Wisdom

If every mother could realize the danger that lurks behind every case of sore throat, she wouldn't rest until she had effected a cure every time a child has it.

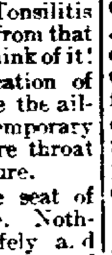

Your family physician will verify the statement that it is a positive fact that every child with sore throat is in immediate danger of contracting Croup, Quinsy, Tonsilitis or Diphtheria, and is not removed from that danger until the throat is cured. Think of it!

Liniments or outward application of medicines do not and cannot cure the ailment, though they may offer temporary relief. Neither can you cure sore throat with a cough syrup or a cold cure.

To cure, you must get at the seat of the disease, removing the cause. Nothing does that so quickly, safely and surely as TONSILINE. A single dose of TONSILINE taken upon the first appearance of sore throat may save long weeks of sickness, great expense, worry, even death. TONSILINE is the stitch in time.

Use a little sore throat wisdom and buy a bottle of TONSILINE today. You may need it tomorrow.

TONSILINE is the standard sore throat remedy—best known and most effective and most used. Look for the long necked fellow on the bottle when you go to the drug store to get it. 25 cents and 50 cents. Hospital Size $1.00. All Druggists.

WELCOME

EXTENDED GOVERNOR HARMON TO NATIONAL AGRICULTURAL EXPOSITION

Which is to be Held for Two Weeks at Columbus State Fair Grounds Beginning January 30.

Interest in the great national agricultural exposition—the fourth annual national corn exposition—to be held in the exhibit halls on the state fair grounds, Columbus, for two weeks, beginning Jan. 30, has become so marked, and with the prospects of its being the biggest agricultural event the world has ever known that proclamations of welcome have been issued by Governor Harmon, Mayor Marshall and President Pretzman of the Chamber of Commerce. Following is the proclamation of Gov. Harmon:

State of Ohio.
Executive Department,
Columbus, Oct 15, 1910.

To the People of the State of Ohio:

In view of the fact that the state of Ohio and the city of Columbus, beginning January 30, 1911, for a period of two weeks, will entertain thousands of visitors who will be in the state and within the city's gates to attend the Fourth Annual National Corn Exposition, to be held in the exhibit halls on the Ohio State fair grounds, a homecoming of former Ohio farmers and their families being a special feature of this great national agricultural exposition as governor of the state of Ohio, and in behalf of the people of the state of Ohio, I hereby extend a most cordial welcome to all who formerly resided in our midst, as well as to all visitors who are brought to our capital city by this important educational exposition.

Recognizing the supremacy of agriculture and the objects of the National Corn Association—to improve the crop and increase the yield — all who come to attend this great event should be cordially greeted on all hands.

Through the state legislature appropriate action has been taken commending this worthy enterprise, and the state board of agriculture has granted the use of its grounds and buildings.

It is the wish that this greatest of all agricultural expositions be made the success that seems to be assured and that the great good that is desired by the National Corn Association be the result.

JUDSON HARMON.

IT GROWS HAIR

Here Are Facts We Want You to Prove At Our Risk.

Marvelous as it may seem, Rexall "93" Hair Tonic has grown hair on heads that were once bald. Of course in none of these cases were the hair roots dead, nor had the scalp taken on a glazed, shiny appearance.

Rexal "93" Hair Tonics acts scientifically destroying the germs that are usually responsible for baldness. It penetrates to the roots of the hair, stimulating and nourishing them. It is a most pleasant toilet necessity, is delicately perfumed and will not gum or permanently stain the hair.

We want you to get a bottle of Rexal "93" Hair Tonic and use it as directed. If it does not relieve scalp irritation, remove dandruff, prevent the hair from falling out and promote an increased growth of hair, and in every way give entire satisfaction, simply come back and tell us, and without question or formality we will hand back to you every penny you paid us for it. Two sizes, 50c. and $1.00. Sold only at our store—The Rexall Store. Hall's Drug Store, 10 North Side Square.

OPERATIONS RESUMED IN THE OIL FIELDS

After a lull in completions for two weeks in the deep sand territory in Perry and Fairfield counties, several good producers have been drilled in and completed in Rushcreek township, Fairfield county, the Flagdale Oil and Gas Company has completed and shot No. 8 on the Graffis heirs' farm and it produced 75 barrels the first 24 hours. his location is 1200 feet west of the Avelon Oil and Gas Company's No. 8 on the Margaret Holliday farm, which has just been drilled in, showing for 50 barrels a day.

East of Bremen, in Rushcreek township, the Columbus Gas and Oil Producing Company has completed and shot its No. 4 on the Jacob Scholl farm and has a show for a 25 barrel producer. This location is 700 feet south of No. 2, a fair producer on the same farm. The Grove City Oil and Gas Company has started a test on the W. S. Turner farm, located 1200 feet southwest of the Bremen Gas and Oil Company's test on the Turner-Kennedy lots. The Diamond Oil and Gas Company's No. 2 on the J. L. Rankin farm, with a production of 60 barrels, and the Carter Oil Company's No. 1, on the John Stoner farm, producing 100 barrels, are the only two wells in the Bremen end of the deep sand district that have a production of 50 or more barrels a day.

The Dividend Oil and Gas Company, which was lately reorganized by Columbus, Lancaster and Cleveland men, expects to raise $30,000, with which to pay off the $15,000 indebtedness of the old company and also to provide working capital for the new company. It is probable that much of this stock will then be taken by the stockholders at par. The company has an income from producing wells of from $700 to $1000 a month and it is believed that if the debt can be wiped out the stockholders will soon be receiving good returns on their investment. The liabilities of the company are all owing to the National Supply Company for materials and to the well drillers, and it is thought that these will soon be paid.

In the new Keener sand development, south of Jerusalem and north of Woodsfield, in Monroe county, John Deal & Co. have drilled in No. 4 on the Moore heirs' farm and have a show for a 40 barrel producer in the Keener sand. In the same district, the Standard Oil Company has drilled its test on the Nathan Warfield farm into the big lime and has a good gasser. Moore Bros. & Deal are drilling No. 3 on the J. H. Moore farm.

Sore Foot Lumps Cured.

When hard callouses form on the toes or the ball of the foot, the simplest and surest cure is to be found in the special directions accompanying Putnam's Painless Corn and Wart Extractor. It cures any corn wart, bunion or callous—does it in twenty-four hours—does it without pain. Insist on getting only Putnam's Painless Corn and Wart Extractor. Price 25c. Manufactured by N. C. Polson Co., Buffalo, N. Y. Sold by Erman & Son.

COMMUNICATED

Editor Advocate: I desire to call your attention to the East Main St. bridge, which is badly in need of paint. The structure is a good one, well built and capable of lasting for years, but the commissioners, or whoever have charge of the bridge, have neglected to see that it is kept up in proper shape and rust has set in. In many places the iron work is in very bad condition, having rusted the iron until it will almost crumble beneath your fingers. Now that winter is coming on, the bridge should be looked after and a good coat of paint applied.

SUBSCRIBER.

Editor Advocate: School children should be taught patriotism and loyalty to the flag, and in some cities it is the custom to fly the American flag from every school in the city every day. I notice that at the high school there is not even a flag staff and in my opinion one should be erected and a flag purchased and raised every school day. If the seed of patriotism is instilled in the American youth early in life, loyalty and reverence for Old Glory will grow with the years.

OBSERVER.

Editor Advocate: You are waging a good fight for better sidewalks in the city and it seems to me that it is high time for a negligent council to take action and compel property owners to see that these walks are laid before winter sets in. Council meets tonight and they should take immediate action in the matter.

Daddy's Bedtime Story—

Lazy Jack

Spoiled This Completely

"OF course when daddy told Evelyn and Jack the name of this story Evelyn laughed, and Jack said it wasn't so—that he was not lazy.

"This boy Jack," said daddy, "lived with his mother. They were quite poor, but Jack liked nothing better than to lie in the sunshine in the summer or by the fire in the winter and do nothing until his mother said that he must go and earn his own living.

"The first place Jack worked was for a farmer, who gave him a penny for his day's work. Jack had never had any money before, so in coming home he tossed it up and down. As he passed over a brook the money was lost. 'You stupid boy; you should have put it into your pocket,' said his mother.

"The next day Jack worked for a cowkeeper, who gave him a jar of milk for his day's work. Jack put the milk in his pocket. Of course it was all spilled and lost. 'Dear me,' said his mother, 'you should have carried it on your head.' 'I'll do so next time,' said Jack.

"Next, Jack worked for another farmer and got a cream cheese for his services. He put the cheese on his head and walked home. By the time he got there the cheese was spoiled. 'You should have carried it in your hands,' said his mother. 'I'll go so next time, mother,' said Jack.

"Jack received for his next day's work a cat. He tried to carry it home in his hands, as his mother had said, but the cat scratched him so that he had to let it go, and it ran away. His mother said, 'You should have led it home with a piece of string.'

"But the next time he worked it was for a butcher, and he received a shoulder of mutton. Jack spoiled this completely by tying a string to it and dragging it home through the mud. 'Oh, dear me,' said his mother, 'you should have carried it home on your shoulder.'

"For his next day's work Jack received a donkey. He was a strong boy, and, remembering his mother's advice to carry things home on his shoulder, he hoisted the donkey up and started to carry it home. Now, there lived in that town a rich man and his daughter. This young girl was very sad without any reason, and the doctors had said that she would die if she did not laugh. The rich man said that she should marry any one who made her laugh, and he would give a large sum of money to her husband. No one had ever been able to make her laugh, try as hard as he might, but when she saw Jack come walking past slowly with the donkey on his shoulders and the donkey's two fore feet sticking out in front of his face the girl laughed long and heartily. The rich man kept his promise by marrying her to Jack."

Auto Accident Sunday.

An auto owned by Levi Hirschberg struck a rig driven by Z. M. Cannon of near Utica last evening about 7:30 o'clock and upset it. The occupants of the buggy were dumped on the ground and slightly injured. Mr. Hirschberg claims the driver of the buggy was on the wrong side of the street. Mr. Hirschberg was driving south on Fourth street, and when opposite the Rugg residence the accident happened. The buggy was crushed against the curbing and finally upset. Mr. and Mrs. Cannon were injured slightly, but the children were not hurt. Mr. Cannon says the auto was on the wrong side of the street and the same claim is made by the auto owner. The police were notified, but no action was taken, as a settlement was made.

Jones and Mrs. McCahon of the Silent Circle; Mrs. Randolph, of the Whatsover Circle; Mrs. W. D. Fulton and Miss Louise Norpell of the Brightening Circle; also Miss Davis of the Granville circle.

Five Drunks Were Arrested.

Five drunks were in police court this morning. Among them was John Ridenour, a frequent visitor in police court. Last night John tried to "touch" a couple of boys near the Y. M. C. A. for ten cents, and when they refused to give to him he said if they would give him a quarter he would buy them a half pint of whisky. Then the police nabbed him. This morning he drew 30 days in the county jail.

A Lack of Words.

In comparison with the English tongue foreign tongues seem parsimonious in some ways of expression and wasteful in others.

For instance, it is impossible to "kick" a man in French. You must give him a "blow with the foot." The Portuguese do not "wink" at one. They "close and open the eyes."

In the languages of the American Indians there is no word with which to convey the idea of "stealing," perhaps because the idea of property is so vague. It is related of one of the early missionaries that in attempting to translate the Bible into Algonquin he could find no word to express "love" and was compelled to invent it.

Hoax—"How can you figure out that time is money?" Joax—"Because times flies."

"The hardest thing in the world to understand is what other people see in each other.

A good memory is one that admits of discreet forgetfulness.

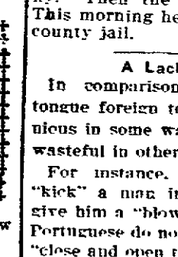

Doing things in a loose manner is apt to get one in a tight place.

A man's fighting qualities don't always show on the surface. Even the game cock is chicken-hearted.

AFTER DOCTORS FAILED

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Cured Her

Knoxville, Iowa. — "I suffered with pains low down in my right side for a year or more and was so weak and nervous that I could not do my work. I wrote to Mrs. Pinkham and took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Liver Pills, and am glad to say that your medicines and kind letters of directions have done more for me than anything else and I had the best physicians here. I can do my work and rest well at night. I believe there is nothing like the Pinkham remedies." — Mrs. CLARA FRANKS, R. F. D., No. 3, Knoxville, Iowa.

The success of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs, is unparalleled. It may be used with perfect confidence by women who suffer from displacements, inflammation, ulceration, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, bearing-down feeling, flatulency, indigestion, dizziness, or nervous prostration.

For thirty years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has been the standard remedy for female ills, and suffering women owe it to themselves to at least give this medicine a trial. Proof is abundant that it has cured thousands of others, and why should it not cure you?

If you want special advice write Mrs. Pinkham, Lynn, Mass., for it. It is free and always helpful.

BANISH CATARRH

Breathe Hyomei for Two Minutes, and Stuffed-Up Head Will Vanish.

If you want to get relief from catarrh, cold in the head or from an irritating cough in the shortest time breathe HYOMEI (pronounce it High-o-me).

It will clean out your head in two minutes and allow you to breathe freely, awake or asleep.

HYOMEI will cure a cold in one day, it will relieve you of disgusting snuffles, hawking, spitting and offensive breath in a week.

HYOMEI is made chiefly from eucalyptus, a soothing, healing, germ-killing antiseptic, that comes from the eucalyptus forests of Inland Australia, where catarrh, asthma and consumption were never known to exist.

HYOMEI is pleasant and easy to breathe. Just pour a few drops into the hard rubber pocket inhaler, breathe it, and cure is almost certain.

A complete Hyomei outfit, including inhaler and one bottle of HYOMEI costs only $1.00 at Evans' Drug Store and druggists everywhere. If you already own an inhaler remember that you can get an extra bottle of HYOMEI for 50 cents. For free sample write Booth's Hyomei Co., Buffalo, N. Y.

OBITUARY

HENRY DAERR.

Henry Daerr, one of Newark's best known German citizens, died at his home, 57 Hancock street, Sunday morning at 11:25 o'clock, of blood poisoning, caused by a carbuncle from which he had been suffering for the past six weeks. His condition took a turn for the worst just a week ago.

The deceased would have been 49 years of age the 15th of next November. He was the son of Peter and Elizabeth Daerr, was born and raised in Newark and had lived all his life here. Mr. Daerr's wife died a little over a year ago. He is survived by a son, Harry, aged 15, a sister, Mrs. Mary Schick of Newark, and four brothers, Louis Daerr, John Daerr and Charles Daerr, all of Newark, and Peter Daerr of Burlington, N. J.

Mr. Daerr's occupation was that of a molder at the Newark Machine Works. He was identified with the Molders' Union, the Modern Woodmen of America, and was also a consistent member of the English Lutheran church.

Funeral services were conducted by Rev. C. C. Roof at the late home Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock, the pallbearers being from the orders of which Mr. Daerr was a member. Interment was made in Cedar Hill cemetery.

AARON DUSTHEIMER.

Mr. Aaron Dustheimer, a prominent and wealthy farmer, residing a short distance south of the city, passed away at an early hour Monday morning after a lingering illness of cardiac asthma, aged 78 years. The deceased was a son of John and Elizabeth Orr Dusthimer, members of one of the most prominent pioneer families of Licking county, and was born near Linnville. He is survived by an aged widow and two sons, Leroy A. and John D. Dustheimer. Besidese these he is survived by two brothers, William Dustheimer of Linnville, James Dustheimer of Jacksontown, and one sister, Mrs. Rev. James Lamp.

The funeral cortege will leave the house on Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock, sun time, and the services will be conducted at the Fairmount church. Interment will be made in the adjoining cemetery.

ANTHONY DILLER.

Anthony Diller, aged 81 years, died at his home in Baltimore street Sunday night about 11 o'clock, of illnesses due to advanced years. He has lived in Newark for some time past and was in the employ of the B. & O. Mr. Diller was an old soldier and a Mexican War veteran. He is survived by a wife. Funeral services will be held in the Church of the Blessed Sacrament, but the hour and date have not yet been set.

CARD OF THANKS.

I wish to thank the superintendent of the City Hospital, Drs. Hatch and McCullough of this city, and Dr. Cramer of Hebron and the nurses at the City Hospital for the efficient attendance on the operation on my eye, which had to be removed. D. M. Brumelle.

An Easy Way to Clean Greasy Pots and Pans

Cleaning the pots and pans and kettles is usually a most disagreeable piece of work, but like everything else there is an easier way to do it, if one knows how. As soon as the food is removed, pour in water and dissolve in it Gold Dust in the proportion of one tablespoonful to a gallon of water. Leave to soak while washing the dishes, then pour off the water and fill with clean suds made in the same way. If particles of food still adhere to the inside of the utensils, use pot-rings for removing them.

A Case of "Quits."

Clerical Customer (arousing himself from a nap in a barber's chair)—All through, eh?

Barber—Yes, sir; quite some time ago.

Clerical Customer—Indeed! Then I must have been indulging in a quiet nap.

Barber—You surely have, sir.

Clerical Customer—It was certainly very kind of you not to awaken me. The rest has done me good, and I am very thankful to you for what was really a very refreshing sleep.

Barber—Don't mention it, sir. It's only a fair return. I attended service at your church last Sunday.—London Graphic.

Italy's Marriage Brokers.

Marriage brokers are a regular institution in Italy. In Genoa there are several marriage brokers who have pocketbooks filled with the names of the marriageable girls of the different classes, with notes of their figures, personal attractions, fortune and other circumstances. These brokers go about endeavoring to arrange matrimonial alliances in the same offhand mercantile manner which they would bring to bear upon a purely business transaction, and when they succeed they get a commission of 2 or 3 per cent upon the dowry, with such extras of bonuses as may be voluntarily bestowed by the party.—London Standard.

DIPLOMAS and DIPLOMACY

Copyright 1910 by Ben. B. Hampton

"DEAR dears!" cried Mrs. Pearson, as she responded to the bell. "This is a pleasant surprise."

It was a surprise to which she must have been growing accustomed, for Elizabeth and I—bachelor maidens, and fiercely independent as became our state—still craved the companionship of an older, wiser woman and the magic of a home. We found them all at the Pearson's, and we spent our disengaged Sundays and generally an evening or so a week in the haven of serenity which they had contrived by filling the drawing-room and the dining-room of their flat with low chairs, deep and soft; a flood of pillows; a few divans; a passé piano; some prints; some lamps, and the warmest, kindliest, most genuine hospitality to be found within a ten-mile radius of the campus. There was no surer help in times of trouble; no heartier congratulations in times of joy; no steadier friendship than the Pearsons gave to such of us as were so fortunate as to know them. Trouble and responsibility seemed to touch them only through their friends, yet I knew, and so did Elizabeth, that it was a hazardous and spirit-wearing task to maintain two small children and an open house upon the salary attached to an assistant professorship.

"I think," she went on, as she closed the door and led us into the tobacco-clouded living room, "that you ought to know everybody here. They're all college people. I'm not speaking of Billy Blight," she amended, as the tall figure of that young man, with a twin Pearson clinging to each leg, arose to salute us, "you ought not to know him, of course, but I'm afraid you do."

"What's he been doing?" asked Elizabeth, when we had greeted the other members of the party and taken our places upon a big divan.

"He's abused our hospitality," Mrs. Pearson answered. "You know how we've given him the freedom of our new house, the 'Castle in Spain.' How we've let him wander about from room to room and look out of all the windows. You know how I even promised to let him paint frescoes on the nursery walls."

"Good, safe place that," laughed Marthana Carruth. "The babies are too young to say what they think."

"But I must protest," said Professor Berger, a dear old chap from Jena who had come to study American Institutions, and whom "Prexy" had shifted to Pearson's care for the afternoon. "It is important to the vitals that the young eye of the child shall not distorted be."

"Of course, of course," agreed all of us who retained the power of speech.

Pearson did his young guest the justice and the honor to say: "Young Blight has won more medals and created more beauty than many an artist twice his age."

"But that does not excuse him," Mrs. Pearson interrupted. "His art may be good, but his manners are atrocious. You know, dears," she went on, "how I've let him play billiards in the billiard room and read in the library."

We assured her that we did know. Billy had enjoyed, even as Elizabeth and I had, free range of the blue prints from the architect's plans for the Pearson's proposed house at West Farms. Mrs. Pearson got the plans and spread them for our inspection.

"See what he's done!" she cried dramatically.

"Oh! that is too bad of him," cried Elizabeth. "Marthana, Mr. Rollins, do come and see what Billy Blight's done to the very best bedroom in the house."

We gathered round her, and there we read across the fair space of the room over the library: "Reserved for the exclusive use of William Blight, Esquire."

"Oh, really, Billy, that is too bad of you," I cried. "That's the room I fixed on for myself."

"And I," said Elizabeth.

"And I," echoed Marthana.

"And we," said Mrs. Pearson.

"That's right; butting in, all of you," growled Billy. "No privacy, even in a chap's own room. I'll not visit you at all. The inhospitality and the selfishness with which I have been treated this day are the last two straws——"

At that John came in. John is John Wentworth, Professor of Philosophy at our college, and my promised husband. He is younger than Mr. Pearson, but the two are great friends, and I think that it is partly on this account that Mrs. Pearson is so good to me. She knows that I shall some day be a faculty wife, and she already treats me with the confidence and friendship which characterize most of the men and women who supply the mental grist to our mill. They are nearly all young; they are all ambitious; and they are more independent than such a body generally is because "Prexy" is so much away from the college. He is our publicity man—every institution in these days must have one—and he is always off lecturing, attending conferences, serving on commissions, getting us new trustees or endowments. This leaves the ordinary, day-by-day, administration of affairs in the hands of the other professors and brings them into frequent and intimate association with one another.

So when John had smoked a quiet pipe and entertained our Germanic friend for half an hour, it seemed quite natural that Mr. Pearson and he should retreat to a tiny room, called by courtesy the study, in which our host kept a few books and bones. Pearson's specialty was zoölogy. Presently Mrs. Pearson and I were summoned to join them, and Professor Berger was left to be amused and mystified by the youngsters.

"Dear friends," said Mrs. Pearson, when the door was closed, "we have such news. You know how long we've had those plans and yet how far we seemed from laying the corner-stone, so to speak."

"Of course they do, dear," Pearson interrupted. "Don't they know we've always spoken of it as the 'Castle in Spain'?"

"Bless it," cried the future chatelaine.

"Well," continued Pearson, and his earnest face and a little laugh in his voice made the words beautiful to us who were so fond of him, "I see my way clear at last, and I've signed the contract. I'm to pay for the castle in two years. If we're careful——"

"Oh! we shall be careful," cried his wife.

"We may own it all in eighteen months."

Of course we congratulated them jubilantly, and Pearson went on:

"It's all on account of that course of zoölogy which the president is listed to conduct. I'm to have that next year. He spoke of it last week. That will raise me to a full professorship. My salary will increase by $2,000. I shall be the head of the science department, and just about the proudest and happiest fellow between here and Timbuctoo."

Again we tumultuously congratulated him.

"And it isn't only that," he went on, "not only the money, though God knows that will be welcome enough; not the house, though that will be precious enough; not the position, though that will be fine enough. But it's the work. The chance. A great big chance to do great big work. I'll make the department a wonder. I'll make the chaps in other universities—aye, and in other countries, like that Berger there—I'll make 'em sit up and take notice. And the students I'll turn out!"

"No, Robert," cried his wife, taking his hand in hers, "you'll never turn out any students at all. You'll get so attached to them and so interested in them, and they'll get so devoted to you that you'll all stay there together, one great happy family dabbling in the internal workings of the animal kingdom. What makes you look so serious, Marian?" she asked suddenly, turning to me. "What's the matter, child?"

"I'm thinking how I should love to be there," I answered. "But I was born too soon. I'm a senior you know, and all these plans are for next year when I shan't be there And we're having such an awful time. 'Prexy' away and the most horrible substitute doing the work."

They all knew that we suffered under Dr. Archibald. He was unquestionably learned, but he was no less unquestionably incapable of imparting his learning. His lectures came late in the afternoon of Monday, Thursday and Friday—a bad time for even a proficient instructor, but fatal to a bad one. Everyone was always tired, and weariness, acting on our natures in different ways, reduced the senior class to a mixture of irritability, frivolity, physical exhaustion, indifference and animosity. Dr. Archibald's platitudinous statements fell upon this remarkably bad ground and bore fruit sometimes in an inattentive lassitude, contagious, overwhelming and impenetrable, and sometimes in acrimonious criticism or retort leading to general uproar.

Now, neither Elizabeth nor I cared very much whether we made our début in the world learned or unlearned in zoölogy. We were students in the art department, and the course was prescribed for us as a sort of groundwork in general structure and anatomy. We never expected to teach the thing, and to us our marks in it, whether for themes or even for the final examination looming toward us at the end of the year, mattered very little. But the case of the majority of the students was very different. They expected, most of them, to fill positions as superintendents, principals, teachers, and even professors, and possibly their diplomas—but surely their ability to pass a creditable general examination would be influenced by their knowledge or ignorance of the natural sciences. All these things they thought about while Archibald read to us his musty lectures, and laid waste four and a half precious hours a week.

Things were at this pass when a peripatetic lecturer named Thornycroft bloomed out one day on the bulletin board with announcements of an extension lecture on "Embryonic Traits." It was one of those popular illuminated and illuminating things which the board of trustees arranged for us from time to time. "Prexy" returned from a two months' absence just in time to preside, and the thing was a great success.

It was one of a course of three to be delivered at varying intervals, and it dawned upon one of the interfering "eds" to write "Prexy" a petition to engage Thornycroft to take our zoölogy class for the rest of the year. There was no definite criticism of Archibald, but the implication was there. We were all delighted at the prospect; we all signed the petition and awaited results. "Prexy" had always been strong on public sentiment and "the pulse of the student body." He used to harangue the other men about the authority of vox populi. He, who never stayed with us long enough to hear it.

It was two or three weeks after this that the routine of our daily lives was upset by John's arrival in the afternoon, while Elizabeth and I were wrestling with the "Life and Times of Leonardi da Vinci." John hardly ever came to see me in the afternoon, and his face, as Margaret ushered him into the little drawing-room, was so grave that Elizabeth prepared to beat a retreat.

"I want to talk to you both," he began, when we had established him in the Morris chair. "I have sent for Billy Blight; he'll be here presently. There's something very serious in the air."

"Has Billy broken out again?" I questioned. John shook his head.

"More serious, far," he answered, and just at that moment Billy's boots resounded in our hall.

"What's up?" he questioned, with instant concern when he saw our gravity.

"I'm afraid Pearson's chance is up," John answered. "I've seen it coming on for two or three weeks—ever since 'Prexy' came back. But now I'm afraid it's certain."

"His chance?" repeated Elizabeth.

"I mean his promotion—his increase—everything. I'm going to tell you three—two of you the wildest youngsters in the college, and the third the wisest and dearest—a grave faculty secret. My reason is that we four are perhaps the best friends the Pearsons have, and they'll be needing friendship. I'm afraid. You know about that petition to the president. Well, he acted upon it, and Thornycroft has consented on condition that he be given full professorship next year and be made head of the science department. Now Pearson has never had a definite agreement with the president or the trustees. He was acting entirely on his own responsibility when he made so sure of it. There is no reason under the sun why Thornycroft's proposition should not be accepted. He is better known than Pearson. His titles will read well in the catalogue."

"But haven't you," I asked, "all of you who appreciate Mr. Pearson, haven't you remonstrated with 'Prexy'?"

"He ought to have his face pushed," contributed Billy.

"Surely, surely," answered John. "We've said all that's possible, but the president, when he is riding his vox populi, vox dei hobby is not amenable to arguments. It looks very much as if the thing would go through.

"And the 'Castle in Spain,'" wailed Elizabeth. "The darling 'Castle in Spain.'"

"Will stay in Spain, I fear," said John, as he rose and put on his overcoat. "I must get back to a lecture. It's not the first time the vox populi has incited murder."

For some time after John left us Elizabeth, Billy and I sat in despair. We were sitting dejectedly over the tea and cake which Margaret's hospitality had provided when there entered the one person in the world whom we were least prepared to face.

"Mrs. Pearson, Miss Marian," Margaret announced, and before we could gather our scattered wits she was looking at us out of her friendly, unsuspecting eyes, and seating herself, cozily assured of welcome.

"It is luck finding you here," she assured Billy. "I was going to write you a line to-night. For you three dear children—and John, of course, Marian—must come to Spain on Saturday week for the laying of the corner-stone. The 'castle' is actually going up."

"My God," murmured Billy.

"Stop your profanity, sir," she chided. "I can't imagine what your parents or guardians were thinking of to let you acquire it."

My throat was actually stiff, but in the dusk I managed to squeeze it and to force myself into some kind of articulation. "Of course we'll all be in Spain when the corner-stone is laid," I mumbled.

"You've got a cold, dear," she broke in, promptly. "I'll have a word or two with Margaret about you as I go out. You know I hate to think of any of the students being sick here in town. That's going to be one of my great joys in the 'castle.' I shall always have a convalescent or two sitting out over the portcullis and getting well in the sunshine. The moat will be full of formaldehyde. A yellow flag shall float over the battlements; the drawbridge will be always up and the iron-studded oak doors covered thick with scarlet-fever plasters."

Elizabeth achieved something which in the darkness passed for a laugh.

"And now I'm going. I just dropped in to make sure of you for the corner stone. The babies will be wondering where I am. And if Robert reached home and found no one to greet him but Maria I verily believe he'd go away again and think he didn't live there at all."

Presently she was gone, and we were left together at the mercy of our nerves and our imaginations until Billy Blight broke out with: "I can stand anything but darkness. Let's have a light on this thing," and with the light he found that both Elizabeth and I were crying.

I think Margaret fed us. I think Billy stayed to dinner. I think we all talked a little in queer, trailing spurts, but I don't remember anything very distinctly until Billy rose to go away.

"And hang it all," he cried, as the personal application occurred to him for the first time, "that bounder of a Thornycroft will work us all to death. How are we going to do in twelve weeks the work that ought to have been spread over nine months. And if we don't make up the stuff he'll throw us all down on the exam. And we'll all be back here next year looking at the dear old Pearsons and knowing that we—for didn't we sign that petition—have shut them out of Spain. Oh, lord!"

I had read of sleepless nights, but I don't think I ever experienced one till then. Hour after hour I revolved the dilemma and studied all of its horrid horns. There seemed nothing to do; absolutely nothing. And yet I was on fire to help my friends and to show John that I could be trusted not only as a safe confidant, but as a resourceful ally. It was six o'clock, and the gray morning was looking in through the windows when at last I hit upon a plan and pattered in to awake Elizabeth and discuss it with her.

"Now, what I thought is this," I began, as I pulled her eider-down about my shoulders; "we'll just frighten these 'eds' away from Thornycroft and back to poor old Archibald."

"But how?" she questioned.

"I got the idea from Billy Blight. You remember what he said, just before he went, about all the extra work and time which the change would involve and the likelihood of our losing our diplomas in the end. Billy generally talks nonsense, but he was as sensible as a judge then. If we can once get the men students—and the majority of women students too, for that matter—to see this aspect of the case, I think you'll see them flocking back to 'Prexy' and declaring themselves quite satisfied with poor old Archibald, who, even if he does not teach us very much, certainly makes no unreasonable demands upon our time, and, just as certainly, will give us all an easy exam. and good marks at the end."

"You're a darling and a genius," cried Elizabeth.

"It shall be done. We'll make 'em cry for Archibald before the week's over. Now let's sleep a little; it isn't quite time to get up."

When public opinion sets strongly in one direction it is no easy thing for three youngsters, however strong their enthusiasm, to turn it round again. And we had to be very careful. It would never have done to show hostility We were just plaintively natural; aware of our mental inferiority, crushed by it, but resigned to it.

"Oh, yes, of course," Elizabeth would sweetly agree, when some enthusiastic "ed" was singing Thornycroft's praises "Of course it's all very well for you. You're clever, but I know I shall not get my diploma this year I've heard something of Professor Thornycroft's plans" Oh, subtle, sly Elizabeth! "He's going to rush us through the whole subject in the next eleven weeks. Then we're to have one week for review, and a comprehensive examination to finish off with. It will finish me—dead. There'll be no diploma for me this year. Ah, well, another year seems long, but it will pass."

That was all very well for Elizabeth Alford; young, independent, and with no responsibilities in the world. Her being at college at all was a whim of hers. Her leaving without a diploma and degree, or her staying to work another year for them were matters of pleasure or convenience with her—no more. But to the men, post-graduates for the most part, with their way to make in the not too affluent world of teaching, the prospect of another year without appointment and salary was a serious thing.

"And I don't think," Elizabeth would add, "that poor old Dr. Archibald is bad enough to make all this necessary. It would be a terrible thing for him to be dismissed like this in the middle of the semester. And hasn't it seemed to you," she would add, with the prettiest air of deference, "that his lectures are getting a little better? Of course, I'm no judge. I'm very ignorant. But don't you think that he is getting in a little more subject matter?"

And the "ed" would be forced to agree. Billy, in a last desperate attempt to steer us all to Spain, had invited Archibald and Pearson to dine with him and had gently started Pearson on his pet theories. It was impossible for anyone to listen to him unmoved and unenlightened, and Archibald absorbed clarity and power enough to transfigure his two or three succeeding lectures. We worked quietly, but hard. And gradually the leaders in the movement to oust Archibald found themselves with few followers. Faculty meetings generally took place on Thursday, and on the Thursday preceding the Saturday fixed for the laying of the corner-stone John again surprised me by calling in the afternoon.

"I haven't a moment to stay," he explained. "I've just come to tell you of a most extraordinary thing. Nearly all the men and several of the women who signed poor Pearson's death warrant have gone to the president and asked him to reconsider any idea of change in the science department."

"Vox populi changing its tune," said I, preparing to confess to the conspiracy and my part in it, when Elizabeth and Billy Blight, crowned with almost visible laurels, broke in upon us. Billy grasped John's hand and shook it warmly, while Elizabeth gathered me into her embrace.

"Isn't it wonderful?" they cried in chorus.

"And isn't Marian wonderful?" Elizabeth added.

"What are you two lunatics talking about?" John demanded, and Elizabeth was so breathless that she allowed Billy to do the talking.

"Thornycroft's down and out. 'Prexy' 'learns that the feeling of the undergraduate body has changed.' Told us so in a nice little speech in his office when I went in with two or three other chaps to speak my little piece. It would have drawn tears to the eyes of a graven image to hear me telling him how we had all learned to love Archibald; how it was only his preliminary lecture that went a little above our heads."

"Marvelous," murmured John, "marvelous and unaccountable."

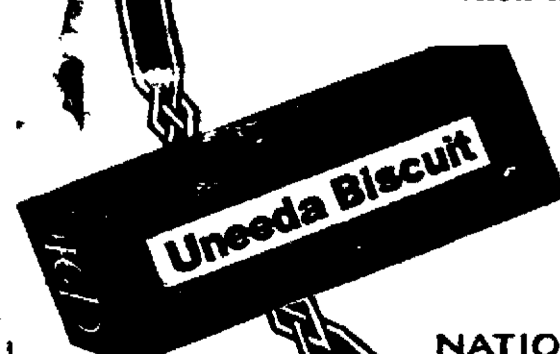

"'You three dear Children must come to Spain on Saturday Week for the Laying of the Corner-stone.'"

"And we can go to West Farms on Saturday with easy minds and consciences," cried Elizabeth. "The Pearsons are safe. If the 'castle' were finished now we four might crave its hospitality on account of the brain strain it has caused us. Oh you dear old Marian!" she cried, and again threw her arms around me while Billy again shook effusively John's unresisting hand.

"She's a girl in a thousand," Mr. Blight was pleased to assure my fiancé. She'll make a wife in a million."

"I know it," John acquiesced, "but might I trouble you to explain why you hold her responsible for this change in public opinion?"

"Oh, it's only their nonsense, John dear," I answered "We've done nothing at all, except to give a few singing lessons to vox populi."

AMUSEMENTS

ORPHEUM THEATRE.

O. G. Murray's approved vaudeville. M. F. Bassett manager. The feature attraction at the popular Arcade playhouse this week is Lea, Jones & Elsman's "Aviator Girls," a big musical comedy, with eleven people, seven pretty girls and four men, featuring Mara Lea, the well known comedian, who was formerly of the team of Hoey & Lea. They have been great favorites in the vaudeville field for the past ten years, assisted by the German comedian, Billy Foster, who will furnish plenty of good clean comedy throughout the performance.

Manager Bassett announces that this company will be one of the best that has ever been offered the patrons of the Orpheum.

The chorus of seven young ladies makes nine complete changes of costumes and introduces the latest song successes, among which are: Call Me Up Some Rainy Afternoon; Cuty, Who Tied Your Tie; the baseball hit Oh, for a Single; Does the Girl You Left Behind Ever Wish You Back Again; Waltz Me, Dearie, Honeymoon Glide.

Do not forget that the matinees start at 2:15 sharp. Special matinee Saturday children under 10 years 5c.

The Orpheumscope always has a feature film.

KEITH VAUDEVILLE.

The outline for the offering at the Auditorium theatre for the first three days of this week looks exceptionally good. The headliner is the troupe of five Japs, called the Isowaka troupe of acrobats. This is one of the best Jap acts in vaudeville and will remain over here the entire week the rest of the bill changing with Thursday's matinee.

Lizzie Evans and Lloyd Jeff will present their rousing comedy playlet, "Turning the Tables." This sketch has the reputation of being a real entertainer.

Cole & Hastings will be seen in a refined singing act and the Gould sisters have a very clever character change act. Kelly & Catlin, billed as the coon and the Chinaman, have a goodly bunch of comedy, which they have the reputation of putting across in a lively way.

RHEUMATIC POISON

Rheuma Drives It from the System and Cures Rheumatism.

Ever since Evans' Drug Store secured the privilege of handling Rheuma in Newark, the sales have been very large.

This is due to the fact that Rheuma really does cure Rheumatism, and that it is guaranteed to cure Rheumatism or money back.

It's a quick acting remedy, too. You don't have to wait a long while for results, for Rheuma starts at once to act on the kidneys, liver, bowels and blood, and before 24 hours the poisonous Uric Acid, which causes Rheumatism, has begun to pass out of the body through the regular channel.

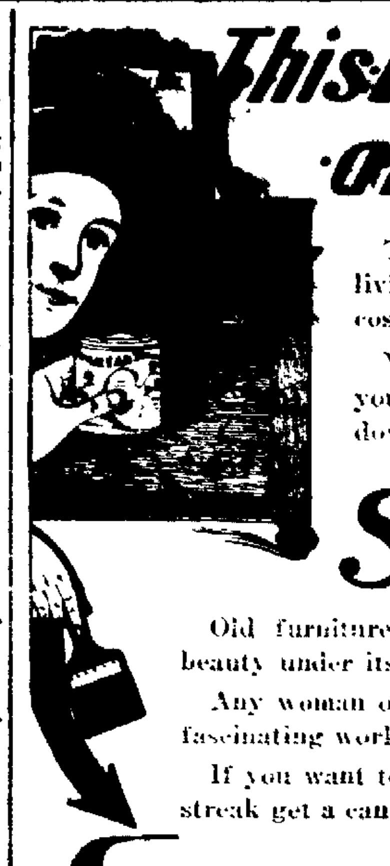

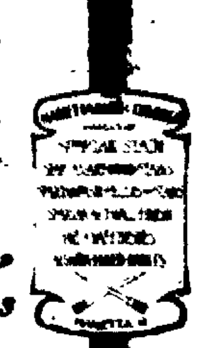

One 50 cent bottle will prove to any Rheumatic sufferer that Rheuma surely will cure Rheumatism.

For quickest relief from acute indigestion, try English Marhue, 25 cents, at Evans' Drug Store. Mailed by Rheuma Co., Buffalo, N. Y.

NEWARK REPRESENTED IN WELLMAN FLIGHT

One of Newark's industries is represented in the famous flight of Walter Wellman across the Atlantic, for in the lighting equipment of the big balloon the lights are equipped with Holophane D'Olier reflectors. In the big basket of the mammoth bag that will carry the party on one of the strangest trips known, is a small electric lighting outfit.

These lights are shaded with the Holophane reflectors, about ten in in all, and if the daring aviator is successful in reaching his destination across hte broad Atlantic ocean, a Newark product will be found in the equipment of the big basket.

The Doctor's Answers on Health and Beauty Questions

By DR. THEODORE BECK.

The questions answered below are general in character, the symptoms or diseases are given and the answers will apply to any case of similar nature.

Those wishing further advice, free, may address Dr. Theodore Beck, College Bldg., College-Ellwood Sts., Dayton, Ohio, enclosing self-addressed stamped envelope for reply. Full name and address must be given but only initials or fictitious name will be used in my answers. The prescriptions can be filled at any well-stocked drug store. Any druggist can order of wholesaler.

Chronic:—Asthma has been conquered by careful regard to diet, exercise and general health when the following treatment has been persistently and regularly used for from two to six months.

Try it, and if it gives relief you can rest assured that it will be most effective as a cure in your case, as it has in many others:

Oil Eucalyptus 1 dram, Terebene 1 dram, Essence Mentho-Laxene 2 1-2 ozs., Glycerine pure 5 ozs. Mix. Shake the bottle and take a teaspoonful every hour or two during attacks, and 6 doses daily at other times.

Ella.—Your distress is due to a complication of [illegible] in a great measure to poor circulation which affects the delicate organs of your sex, causing the usual abnormal symptoms of pain, griping, headache and soreness in the chest and under the shoulder blades. Your weight is 20 pounds below normal and your blood is in poor condition. Have this prescription filled and use regularly for several months:

Viburnum Prunifolium 1 oz., Tincture Cadomene Comp. 1 oz., Comp. Syrup Hypophosphites 5 ozs. Mix and take a teaspoonful, even 3 times daily during the day followed by a glass of water.

Also obtain 3-Grain Hypo-Nuclane Tablets and take as per directions accompanying sealed package.

Harry L.—Your questions and symptoms have been answered and explained several times heretofore in these columns, but as they may have escaped your attention I will repeat my advice, as I have so many letters. The sores on your hands and arms, of a complicated [illegible] is a form of eczema. Wash with warm water and pure soap, rinse, and while the skin is wet apply a small portion of plain Yellow Mixyol, rubbing and massaging a few minutes, and then rinse off and dry thoroughly. Then apply the following ointment:

Oil Eucalyptus 15 drops, Rose-Kaylolm 2 1-2 drams, White Vaseline 2 ozs. Mix. This treatment will [illegible] smart [illegible] to destroy the germs [illegible] the skin. Internal treatment for the blood, liver and bowels [illegible] should have prescription [illegible] the [illegible] and use as per directions [illegible].

Hazel W.—[illegible] will require a long course of treatment [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] treatment [illegible] [illegible] To a glass of hot water add a teaspoonful of Vilane Powder and a teaspoonful [illegible] 15 to 20 minutes [illegible] water [illegible].

Catherine.—Your [illegible] accompanied by [illegible] brought on [illegible] is a constant absorption of poisons which [illegible] eliminated. [illegible] Omit meat [illegible] also starches, such as fresh bread, pastry and potatoes except baked. [illegible] For the indigestion take Tablets Triopeptine [illegible] after breakfast, dinner and supper. Also take 1-2 to 1 teaspoonful [illegible] correct liver and bowels: Fl. Ext. Mandrake [illegible], Aromatic Fl. Cascara 1 oz., Comp. Essence Cardiol 1 oz., Aromatic Syrup Rhubarb 4 ozs. Mix. [illegible] three or four doses a day. After two weeks alternate and take the following as a powerful tonic to improve the circulation: Comp. Syrup Hypophosphites 5 ozs., Tincture Cadomene Comp. 1 oz. (not Cardamom.)

This course of treatment should be continued until entirely relieved.

Young Girl:—You ask for a preparation to remove freckles (and tan). I don't think well of face creams, but this face wash is most effective if persistently and regularly used. It removes tan and freckles by absorption: Potassium Carbonate 3 drams, Sodium Chloride 2 drams, Rose-Kaylolm 2 1-2 drams (package), Orange Flower Water 2 ozs., Rose-Water 8 ozs. Mix, and apply two or three times daily as a face wash, permitting it to dry on the face.

Social.—Excessive perspiration under the arms can be relieved by washing morning and night with a pint of warm water to which has been added a level teaspoonful of Antiseptic Vilane Powder, but to cure, the only sure method is to bathe the entire body often daily and keep the bowels active. The perspiration should not be checked altogether.

Relief.—Your stomach trouble is due to an excess of acid causing much gas, rumbling, headache, sour risings, etc., especially after eating acid fruits, etc. Take Tablets Triopeptine as per directions accompanying sealed package. Also take 1-2 teaspoonful of Sodium Phosphate—in water—after each meal. If constipated, take 3-grain Tablets Sulpherb, put up in sealed tubes. Never take a substitute for anything I prescribe.

Frank I.—Your description indicates that your blood is poorly circulated and your main trouble is pruritis and itching piles. The only reliable treatment is as follows: Mix Hyposulphite of Soda 2 ozs., Antiseptic Vilane Powder 2 ozs. Add a teaspoonful to a pint of warm water and wash the parts thoroughly with it twice daily, after which apply the following ointment: Carbolic Acid 40 minims, Citrine Ointment 1 oz., Rose-Kaylolm 2 1-2 drams, Lanolin 1 oz. Mix and apply twice [illegible] Continue until well. To improve the circulation, take a teaspoonful 3 to 6 times daily of the following: Tincture Hamamelis 2 ozs., Tincture Calomene Comp. 1 oz., Aromatic Syrup Rhubarb 5 ozs. Mix.

Mrs. E. S.—I do not know the formula you refer to. An excellent and reliable stain for the hair which is not harmful, but beneficial as a hair tonic, follows: Take six heaping tablespoonfuls of coffee and boil it in 2 pints of water until reduced by evaporation to 1 quart. Strain through [illegible] and [illegible] of Vilane Powder. By making the coffee stronger or weaker you can make any shade you desire. The odor of coffee is lost on long [illegible].

Blanche.—Use same treatment as "Ell."

Thomas.—That [illegible] known as a [illegible] of the eyelids. [illegible] treatment will remove it [illegible] [illegible] Apply twice or four times daily the following: [illegible] Iodide of Mercury 4 grains, Rose-Kaylolm 2 1-2 drams (package), White Vaseline 1 ozs. Mix. For granulated eyelids, bathe the eyes every two hours with a weak solution of Antiseptic Vilane Powder. Use a level teaspoonful of the powder to a pint of warm water.

Stout.—If you had my prescription [illegible] druggists [illegible] to [illegible] something [illegible] as good [illegible] Glycol-Arbolene, how could you expect results? Never permit a druggist to substitute anything for the real concentrated drugs which I prescribe.

The correct formula for reducing fat 4 to 7 pounds a week is: Fl. Ext. Bladderwrack 1-2 oz., Glycol-Arbolene 1 oz., Aromatic Elixir 4 1-2 ozs. Mix. Shake well and for the first 3 days take 1 teaspoonful after each meal, and thereafter increase to two teaspoonfuls.

E. D. R.—Your trouble being of a serious private nature you should write giving full particulars name and address. I cannot answer in these columns. Send for my examination chart.

KIDNAPPED CHILD RETURNED TO FATHER

Found in a hobo camp near Mt. Vernon, Sunday afternoon, Earl Mills, 13 years of age of Windber, Pa., who was kidnapped from his home on September 4, was returned to his father, who accompanied Chief of Police S. W. McMullen of Windber and who was on the trail of the tramps.

On that Sunday afternoon several weeks ago, Earl was playing and between 5 and 6 o'clock he disappeared. A search was made but no trace of him was found for some time. Then the police found that an umbrella mender had taken him. The boy's father, J. H. Mills, was frantic and every effort was made to locate the missing lad. Finally it was found that the tramp's name was Robert J. Kelly, and the police kept close on his trail.

Finally the man was forced to make a fast move and after he had the boy with him for 20 dys he turned him over to Dan Stanley, another hobo and he kept the lad until a week ago Sunday when he left him at Sugar Creek when pursuit grew too hot for him. The boy was taken in charge by by some tramps who cared for him until yesterday when the police located the missing child in a camp of the vagabonds near Mt. Vernon. The father and the officer swooped down on the camp and took the boy away with them. Sunday night they came to Newark and notified the local police, who have been at work on the case, that the boy was found.

Earl is a bright little chap of thirteen, light complected and with big blue eyes, and since he is safe with his father he rather enjoys his unusual experience. Strange to say he was given the best of treatment by his captors while he was in their charge.

The police are now trying to locate the kidnappers and if captured it will go hard with them, for in Pennsylvania kidnaping carries a life sentence in the penitentiary.

PEOPLE'S PULPIT...

Sermon by CHARLES T. RUSSELL, Pastor Brooklyn Tabernacle

The Seas In the Hollow Of God's Hand

"Who hath measured the seas in the hollow of his hand" (Isaiah xl, 12).

On the Ocean, October 16.—Pastor Russell of Brooklyn Tabernacle is enjoying his usual health, en route for London. He expects to be back in Brooklyn the first Sunday in December. His Sundays in Great Britain will be given to London, filling appointments with as many as possible of the smaller cities week days. His discourse for today from the foregoing text follows:—

The wonderful force and immensity of the thought of our text, cannot be appreciated by those who have never been upon the great Ocean. As we travel through the water at railroad speed and keep watch in every direction, yet seldom see a vessel, large or small, day after day, we begin to get a little conception of the world in which we live. It is so much larger than previously we were able to comprehend. Yet by the aid of the telescope and the mathematical calculations we perceive that our earth and its seas are small, in comparison to many other worlds. We perceive that our solar system (our sun and his planetary satellites) constitutes but a small fraction of God's great creation. Astronomers tell us that by the aid of sensitive photographic plates they are able to count about one hundred and twenty-five millions of suns, around which planets are revolving, as our earth revolves around our sun. And they estimate that probably only a portion of these suns is visible to our naked eye—so far distant are they. Astronomers estimate that there are millions of other suns so far distant that their light cannot even be discerned by photography.

We stand appalled at the immensity of space and the law and order which everywhere reign. We heartily assent to the words of the Prophet David, "Day unto day uttereth speech, and night unto night showeth knowledge; there is no place where their voice is not heard." The person who can look upon this wonderful display of superhuman power and who can believe that these worlds created themselves, shows to the majority of us that, if he has brains, they are sadly disordered, unbalanced. The person who, after intelligent thought, concludes that there is no God, that everything came to be what it is by chance or by the operation of some blind force—that person is described in the Scriptures in the following words, "The fool hath said in his heart, There is no God" (Psalm xiv, 1).

"The Half Was Never Told."

On first reading our text some of us might have been inclined to say, Ah, a beautiful poetic extravagance! But not so, dear friends! As scientific instruments demonstrate to us the immensity of the universe we perceive that the Prophet used very moderate language indeed in his description of the majestic power and greatness of the Creator, representing him as weighing the mountains in his balances and holding the seas in the hollow of his hand and that, from his standpoint, a thousand years are but as a watch in the night. How insignificantly small we all feel in the presence of our God! No wonder some great men have been inclined to say that humanity is too insignificant from the Divine standpoint to be worthy of the least consideration—much less to be objects of Divine care and providence! The Scriptures encourage us to reason from the known to the unknown. They tell us that although God is so great, so wise, so powerful, he is also just and loving. And the more we consider the matter, the more reasonable this Bible description of the Almighty appears. His power we see demonstrated. The wisdom of One so great cannot be doubted. Then we come to consider, Could One so wise and so powerful be unjust or ungenerous? Our hearts answer, No! No one is really great who is devoid of justice and love. So surely as our God is Jehovah he must possess these qualities.

When we came in contact with the Bible, and particularly after we learned something of its teachings and got rid of the misrepresentations which gathered about it during the dark ages—then we began to recognize it as the message of Jehovah to his creatures. It informed us that the great Creator of the universe is not only Almighty and All-wise, but loving and kind, with Justice as the very foundation of his Empire. From the Bible we learned, too, that our Creator had been pleased to make us in his own image, in his own moral likeness, to the intent that we might enjoy him and the fruits of his righteousness to all eternity. From this standpoint we began to realize that the loftiest sentiments of the human mind and heart are merely the reflections of this Creator.

Thus coming into sympathetic accord with our Maker we can comprehend the principles of his character—what justice signifies, and mercy and kindness—what is wisdom as contrasted with foolishness. From this standpoint we were enabled to see the glorious perfection of our Maker's character and attributes, which justify the name which he has taken to himself when he declares through his ambassador, "God is Love." As we come to realize this more and more, we are grasping the Infinite; we are getting near to the heart of the great Eternal One, who weighs the mountains as in a balance and measures the seas in the hollow of his hand.

"Like Unto Your Father."

Godlikeness is love-likeness, and, as the Scriptures declare, "Love is the fulfilling of the (Divine) Law" (Romans xiii, 10). Our great Creator, the only living and true God, is thus seen in contrast with all the gods of the heathen, who are pitiless, merciless, vengeful, devilish. From the Bible we learn that Jehovah, the True God, takes delight in doing good—in the exercise of his Almighty power and wisdom in the creating of beings in whose everlasting life and enjoyment forever he takes pleasure. With such glorious intentions his creative work began with the celestial beings, who are still enjoying his favor. With similar benevolence he created man a little lower than the angels, crowning him with glory and honor as the king of all creatures, on the animal, the human, plane, the likeness of his Maker, who is a spirit. Hearkening to the explanations of the Divine purposes by the Apostles and Prophets, we have received assurances that nothing has befallen humanity in all the dire experiences of the past six thousand years that the great Creator did not foresee. Further, we have the assurances that Divine Wisdom purposes eventually that the tears and sorrows, cryings and dying, the penalty for Original Sin, under which man has suffered all these centuries, the great Creator purposes shall work no real disadvantage to his creatures. Instead, the end of the Divine Program will attest the various elements of the Divine character as nothing else could have done. The holy angels, who have known no sin, will in mankind read to eternity a valuable lesson of the exceeding sinfulness of sin and the wisdom and blessedness of righteousness.

And even mankind, although at present suffering seriously under the weight of Divine displeasure and condemnation to death, will ultimately be so blessed and the weight of blessing so outweigh the sorrows of the curse, that every creature shall bow the knee and every tongue confess to Divine Justice, Wisdom, Love and Power, in connection with the Divine dealings with humanity.

"Joy Cometh In the Morning."

A night of weeping six thousand years long, involving suffering and sorrow to twenty-thousand millions, is an awful thought. But the proposition is yet a different one when we remember that the majority of Adam's children die in infancy and that to those who live their three score years and ten with labor and sorrow, there are pleasing and happifying experiences, as well as tears. And when we read that even the tears of a few years are a part of the disciplines, instructions and experiences which God designs shall be valuable lessons in preparation for a glorious and joyous eternity—then the whole matter begins to have a new aspect to our minds. If the light afflictions of this present time will work out blessings for eternity then we can rejoice in them for ourselves, our neighbors and all humanity. And this is the Divine proposition. Not that God has ever proposed eternal life for a single rebellious soul, but that he has prepared blessing for all of Adam's race who shall come into full harmony with himself. At present he is teaching great general lessons to humanity as a whole by the exceeding sinfulness of sin. It would be too bad if, as these lessons are learned, there should be no opportunity of profiting by them. But there will be an opportunity of profiting, and this is the great message which God has sent to mankind and which, Scripturally, is styled The Gospel—the "good tidings of great joy which shall be unto all people," through Christ.

The night of weeping, six thousand years long, is about to be followed by the morning of joy. The New Day, in which darkness and sin will be abolished and in which the Sun of Righteousness will bless and heal the world of mankind, is a Thousand-Year Day for the blessing and uplifting of our race (II Peter iii, 8). The Bible describes that day in most glowing terms. It is the day of Messiah, the day in which God's Kingdom shall come and his will be done on earth as it is done in heaven, the day in which the poor and needy will be lifted up from the dunghill of superstition and depravity, the day in which the knowledge of the glory of God shall fill the whole earth.

And there shall be no more fear. That day will not end as do others. It will not be followed by a night, but lead on to a glorious eternity for all of God's creatures who appreciate Divine goodness and, using the Divinely provided opportunities, will return to full harmony with their Creator. Such he will in turn recognize as his sons and, at his right hand of favor, they will enjoy pleasures for evermore.

The Revelation of Our God.

One of old truly said, "Thou art a God which hidest thyself" (Isaiah xlv, 15). How true! As a result the world by wisdom knows not God. He is near in his wisdom and love, yet he can be seen only by those whose eyes of understanding have been opened. But we are glad that the time is coming when all the blind eyes shall see clearly. "As I live, saith the Lord, the whole earth shall be filled with my glory." "The knowledge of the glory of God shall fill the whole earth as the waters cover the great deep" (Habakkuk ii, 14). Then all shall see what God hath wrought and our temporary blindness will but accentuate the glorious brightness of his Wisdom, Justice, Love and Power:

"Blind unbelief is sure to err,
And scan his work in vain;
God is his own interpreter,
And he will make it plain!"

In the end it will be seen that the Divine permission of the reign of sin and death in the earth, instead of being a blot upon Divine character and a demonstration of Divine unwisdom and incompetency, will reveal the great Creator to his subjects, his children, as nothing else could have done. Besides, the experiences of mankind during the seven thousand years from Adam's creation to the end of Messiah's mediatorial Kingdom will demonstrate traits of the Divine character which could not otherwise be manifested to angels or to men.

For instance, without the permission of sin, the element of Divine Justice and the unalterable opposition of God to all sin would never have been known to his creatures. His sentence upon father Adam and his race and the permission of the reign of death and sin for all these centuries have demonstrated the fact that Divine Justice cannot be trifled with. And this reign of sin and the strength of the Divine opposition to sin, and the sentence upon sinners, in turn gave opportunity for the exhibit of Divine mercy, compassion, sympathy, love. Undoubtedly God's love was known to the angelic hosts before, but not to the same extent. His dealing with humanity will prove the depth of his sympathy to angels and to men. "God commended his love toward us, in that while we were yet sinners Christ died for us" (Romans v, 8). Surely, as the poet declares, we have in this a manifestation of "Love Divine, all love excelling."

More than this; some of us at one time were, perhaps, inclined to criticize our Maker and to say that he had no right to redeem us at the cost of Calvary; that it was wrong to cancel the sins of one and require their payment of another. But we erred. It was not thus. Rightly understood, the dealings of the Father with the Son add still further to his glory—magnify still more his Wisdom, Justice, Love and Power. With all power and authority the Almighty would not command the death of his Son. For Jesus to become man's Redeemer meant his voluntary sacrifice of himself. And how shall we understand this—the Reedeemer's willingness to be man's ransom-price? The Scriptures, replying, tell us that it was because of his great love for the Father, his great confidence in him and his willingness to submit to the Divine will and purposes and arrangement in everything. Yet, notwithstanding the willingness of the Redeemer, the Father would not permit him to engage in this great undertaking which would cost himself so much, unless he would give him the corresponding reward. Thus we read of Jesus, that "for the joy that was set before him he endured the cross and despised the shame."

"No! It Is Just Like Him."

The Divine Plan being set forth to an old colored woman, she was asked if it was not strange that God should do such great things for us. Her answer was, "No, Master; it is just like him!"

So we say respecting the great God who made the heavens and the earth and sun and stars. It is not strange that he should have a glorious Plan for all of his creatures—a Plan which will fully exemplify his character—his Justice, Wisdom, Love and Power!

And amongst these wonderful things of the Divine Purpose none is more wonderful than that which relates to the Church class, "the elect," drawn and called and begotten of the holy Spirit during this Gospel Age. These, justified by faith instantly, are a separate class from the world, who will be justified, perfected, through works during Messiah's glorious reign. The arrangement for their faith-justification through the merit of the Redeemer in advance of the world's justification is for the purpose of allowing these, who by nature are "children of wrath even as others," to become sons of God on the spirit plane, "partakers of the divine nature."

Dealing on lines of impartiality, God's offer to these members of Adam's race, a "little flock" in all, is that, if they join with their Redeemer in sacrifice and walk in his footsteps, his merit shall cover their blemishes and they may become for all eternity his glorious Bride and joint-heirs with him in his Kingdom—that they may sit with him in his Throne and be associated in the great work of uplifting the children of men.

How wonderful is our God, infinite in all his qualities! "Who hath known the mind of the Lord; who hath been his counsellor?" (Romans xi, 34.) How came all these wonderful things which are written in his Book, unless by his own knowledge? Let us bow before him and adore him and be faithful followers in the footsteps of Jesus until the end of the race—until we receive the crown of life.

blindly moved toward its goal; man must deliberately choose the means by which he works out the end of his own ideas. The ideal must move the man, whereas impelling influence moves the animal—man therefore becomes of his very need a creature subject to law. Man alone is free to make his own counsel in finding his place in the destiny of the universe. A man in the "loving clutch" of the law is where he ought to be and and wants to be.

Since we are men and not animals, we must overcome our impulses. We have a little world of our own to subdue; we have given into our power the control of our own natures. If man yields to his impulses and crosses the line of propriety, he leaves the realm of the law, and leaving his peculiar guiding star of reason, sinks below the animal. Our duty is to use that self-control which alone can make us what God wants us to be.

It is by education that the human race reaches manhood and control. The child is a creature of pure impulse. The great work of education is the cultivation of the power of self-control. The law is the only means that can make nature more than natures. The only real legacy that you can leave to your children is character. God can give to man no greater gift than His own likeness, which which cannot be imprinted on the unwilling and unreceptive mind. Educators can do no more than to make their pupils lords of their own natures. When this ideal is attained, charity will be swept from the face of the earth, because something better will have taken its place.

We individually are temples of the living God. We have the inexpressible privilege of shaping ourselves into His image. Every community has certain ways of living for bringing about that greatest good to the greatest number. The law of the city is the accepted recipe for the reaching of this greatest good. In order to reach the benefits of civilization, we must live within restriction. Man has the making of himself in his own hands. No man can reach the height of his perfection until every human creature is in some way organically in touch with every other human creature.

Impulses are not of themselves bad; it is the abuse of impulses that makes them wrong. Law is just the way to get to an end that you have set before you. The best way to use a bad law is to show, by your keeping it, that it does not lead to the right end. Our best way is to respect law as our best friend. May the day come when we shall not need the direct gift of chairty, but shall be brought under that law which shall make all mankind what they ought to be.

Following Dr. Stibitz' address, the Girls' choir concluded their program with the following numbers:

a Come to Our Hearts and Abide..
.... Wimer
b God Will Take Care of You..Excell
c He Shall Feed His Flock........
.... W. F. Gates

At the conclusion of the last musical number, the audience stood and joined in singing "America."

The second address of the afternoon was "A Reformatory for Women," by Katherine Bement Davis, Ph. D., superintendent Women's Reformatory, Bedford, New York. Her subject was especially apt at this time, following and supplementing the thoughts of Miss Vignos's Saturday lecture on "Needs of Some Ohio Institutions."

Dr. Davis said, in opening, that one of the most hopeful and cheering signs of the times is the development of an attitude of personal responsibility toward society as a whole. We recognize, for example, the far-heaching evil of bad housing conditions, under which human beings can not be expected to develop into responsible citizens. Existing economic social conditions are responsible for the development of a class of beings who are anti-social. Lack of a chance, not criminal instinct, explains many a law breaker. We are learning that transgression goes back to some educational lack, and that the duty of the state is not punishment, but an effort to reclaim. Ohio has recognized this need in the establishment of the Ohio Reformatory at Mansfield; but what is the state going to do with its young women who transgress? Send her to the county jail, the workhouse, or the state prison? For existing conditions in these institutions, no individual or official is directly responsible; the fault lies with the people. Even state constitutions are the product of human intellect, and subject to change.

Three states have made somewhat adequate provisions for caring for their women—New York, Massachusetts and Indiana. In each of there, in some degree at least, opportunity is given for some such discipline and training as many states offer to their young men. Such conditions as prevailed in New York twenty-six years ago, prevail in many states today, with no effort made to convert erring women into decent, responsible members of society. Many prisons and workhouses are actually training schools for criminals. New York found the real economic advantage of a longer detention and training, resulting in at least a remunerative percentage of reformation; since that time, public sentiment of that state has far advanced, and many others are recognizing the danger to society, in not following such example.

Women entering such reformations are usually found to be of entirely untrained impulse. With them we have to undo the consequences of bad heredity and environment. When sentence is imposed upon such persons for violation of the law, that sentence should mean, not punishment, but opportunity. The public must be educated to recognize this condition. The underlying fact is that, with women, a specific crime committed is usually more or less of an accident. Then it is the woman that you have to treat, not the crime. Classification is necessary and important, but cannot be made along the lines of the crime committed; the only proper classification must be that based on character, and the cottage system is the only satisfactory plan, if real reformation is expected.

You must consider training along three lines. The first thing is to get good physical condition, to quiet their nerves; then you can begin industrial training, and finally, look for the moral spark. So the first demand for the reformatory is for a trained resident woman physician; and usually the first treatment toward a moral reform is out-door employment, which may be of varying nature under varying conditions.

Having gotten good physical condition, begin the industrial training. Bear in mind constantly the educational feature of this training. Many women admitted to such institutions are illiterate and the education of the school room will be found valuable in leading them to understand the laws of life.

Last of all, seek to arouse the spiritual nature—the most difficult task of all. The important thing in this connection is the daily influence of teachers who will reach the spiritual nature by the unconscious precept of right living. If you are going to do the thing at all, be prepared to pay enough to have the thing done right.

Many states are now agitating this problem; shall the great state of Ohio lag behind?

Monday's Session.

The first work to be done Monday morning by the Ohio State Conference of Charities and Corrections was that by the various sections, which convened at 8:15 o'clock. At the infirmary directors' meeting in the auditorium of the First M. E. church, Supt. L. W. Adrian of Steubenville gave an interesting talk on "Labor by Inmates," and Dr. E. F. Bauer of Harrison, told of the medical care they should receive. The infirmary matrons met in the lecture room of the First M. E. church, and Mrs. S. F. Beverage of Chauncey told of the making and care of women's clothes and Mrs. A. Schenck of Celina read an instructive paper on "Classification of Inmates." At the county visitors' meeting in the auditorium of the Plymouth Congregational church the following papers were given: "City Jails," by Capt. E. J. Cowley of Lorain and "How Far Shall a Visitor Go?" Mrs. Anna M. Vicary of Lima.

"Problems of a Small Children's Home," by J. M. Fox of Marysville and a discussion of Mr. Longman's address on "Colored Dependent Children," were the chief topics on the program of the Children's Home officials, who met in the basement of the Congregational church. In the Sunday school room of the Plymouth Congregational church, the Children's Home matrons discussed the paper, "The Nursery and Kindergarten," by Mrs. Mary E. White of Columbus and also that of "Purchase, Making and Care of Clothing," by Mrs. J. L. Jordan of Marietta. The Blind Relief commissioners met in the auditorium of the Church of Christ and listened to an able discourse on "The Blind Man's World," by Dr. Derick T. Vail of Cincinnati, and the City Charities heard Francis H. McLean of New York speak in the basement of the Church of Christ on "Progressive Co-operation and Greater Efficiency in the Work of City Charities."

The Ohio Probation League [illegible] meeting [illegible] room of the Church of Christ and the following program was [illegible]:

"[illegible] We Face the Truth?" Rev. J. A. Bennett, First Baptist Church, Newark.

Ministers' Round Table. Presided over by Rev. [illegible] Wharton, Wesley Chapel, Columbus.

"The [illegible] and the Home." Rev. [illegible] Wyant, Columbus.

"The Church, the Street and the Child,"—Rev. E. Lee Howard, Painesville.

"The Church, the Club and the Boy," —Rev. J. A. Bennett, Newark.

Meeting closed with memorial service for Mr. [illegible] and Mrs. [illegible] Orton, conducted by Mr. and Mrs. C. S. Carr and Rev. E. Lee Howard.

The session for the last day of the twentieth annual state conference of Charities and Correction opened at 10 o'clock at the High school auditorium and of especial interest was the reading of the resolutions and announcement of the officers and members of the committees selected by the committee on organization and read by O. W. Davis of Columbus:

President—Rev. R. A. Longman of Cincinnati.

First Vice President—Mrs. Apollo Opes of New Philadelphia.

Second Vice President—Rev. J. A. Bennett of Newark.

Secretary—H. H. Shirer of Columbus.

Executive Committee—E. J. Brown, Maumee; J. Bruce Byall, Toledo; Mrs. E. J Barney, Dayton; Dr. H. H. Drysdale, Cleveland; R. H. Platt, Columbus; H. H. McFadden, Steubenville; Howard Strong, Cleveland; Miss Blanche Vignos, Canton.

Member of Committee on Extension of Organized Charity for Three Years —Rev. C. N. Pond, Oberlin.

The following resolution was adopted: That as members of the Ohio State Conference of Charities and Corrections, we respectfully suggest to the executive committee that the rules of procedure of the conference be so amended as to provide for the election of a chairman and secretary by each group holding section meetings, who, in addition to the usual duties of such officers, shall also act as the committee on program for its section, with power to add to its membership; this committee to co-operate with the executive committee in arranging the program for the general sessions.

Signed—O. W. Davis, Columbus; John R. Taylor, Marysville; Mrs. F. O. Hartrum, Dayton; Mrs. Mary L. Wire, Wilmington; Prof. J. Howard Brown, Cadiz; Mrs. Nathan Rosewater, Cleveland, committee on organization.

Miss Addie Kidwell, governess of the Children's Home at Marietta, entertained the audience the first half hour with a description of the work and of its many pleasant features and few discouragements. Miss Kidwell has been at the home for thirty years and her experiences during that time furnished much food for thought for her auditors.

Dr. H. M. Platter, inspector of the State Board of Health, of Columbus, read an entertaining and instructive paper on "Traffic in Babies," in which he told of some terrible truths they must battle with and how the little ones are cared for. He was preceded by Rev. Mr. Longman of Cincinnati, who gave a pleasing little introductory address.

A. B. Williams, Jr., superintendent of the Humane Society, Cleveland, spoke on "Some Phases of the Work of Humane Society," and he was amply able and prepared to handle his subject in a most forceful way with examples that made one shudder to think such things exist.

The morning session then came to a close.

This afternoon there was no session but all delegates were the guests of the committee on entertainment who furnished transportation for them to visit the Children's Home in this city and other points of interest and also gave them free automobile rides around the city.

The closing session opens in the High school auditorium this evening at 7:30 o'clock.

LOOK OUTSIDE.

If you want to make the best of your life don't spend much time in looking within and wondering if your feelings are all right. Look outside instead and see what you are doing for others, what you are saying about other people, how you are behaving to those around you. If you are behaving kindly and truly to your neighbor you will not go far wrong.

This Gown

is Armand's Personal Choice

This is the model for the coming season that M. Armand singles out from all the exclusive creations in Mariage et Armand's lovely Place Vendome parlors.

The foundation of this Egyptian red Parisienne crepe de Chine, printed with a cashmere border, is veiled with prunelle chiffon that has a deep hem and paniers of prune de velvet. Chemisette of the charming prune-tinted chiffon. Lace empiecement of vieux argent and steel over old silver and steel.

Line is the chief motif of the new styles.

Therefore, the fashionable silhouette demands a good figure under the gown. A good figure is merely a matter of the right training. Figures are made, not born.

Figure building and figure training (requiring both art and science) are peculiarly the province of C B corset makers. Their clients are the best dressed women of all countries. If you are wearing C-B A La Spirite corsets ask to see the new models designed for your figure. If you are not wearing them you do not yet know how much your figure can be improved. For sale everywhere.

Weekly style cables from C/B Fashion Bureau in Paris are at least 60 days ahead of everything else. These cables are published in full on the first of each month in a free booklet entitled "C B Style Cables." Ask for it at the corset counter.

SUDDEN

WAS THE LAST SUMMONS TO GENIAL JONATHAN MOORE.

Former Recorder of the County and Well Known Citizen Was Only Sick a Few Days.

A large concourse of friends will be greatly grieved to learn of the death of Jonathan H. Moore, which occurred at his home, 49 Clinton street, Saturday evening at 8:45 o'clock, after a two years' illness of a complication of diseases which followed a nervous breakdown. While Mr Moore has been complaining for some time, he had been able to sit up and be around town, and always had a bright smile for his friends and always looked on the bright side of his afflictions, so that nobody realized that Mr. Moore was so near to a collapse. He had been confined to his home for only the past three days. Saturday evening he was lying on the couch in his sitting room when suddenly he gave several gasps. His wife rushed to his side and led him into the bedroom, but his head barely touched the pillow when he expired.

The deceased was aged 53 years last April. He was born in Franklin township and spent his early life on the farm, later teaching in one of the district schools. When about 20 years of age he came to Newark and has since resided here, making himself useful and honored in both the business and public life of the city. For seven years Mr Moore served county faithfully as recorder and the five years previous to his health failing him he was connected with the Citizens Building and Loan Association of Newark. He was prominently identified with the Knights of Pythias of this city.

Mr. Moore is survived by his wife, Mrs. Louise Moore, to whom he was married in 1888. She is the oldest daughter of Joseph Kuster Sr. of this city. Two sons also survive, Ernest Moore and J. Benton Moore; two Brothers, David and Samuel Moore, and a sister, Mrs. Mary Crilly of this city.

The obsequies will be conducted by the Rev. Mr. Shoemaker at the late home Tuesday at 2 p. m., under the auspices of the Knights of Pythias of Newark. Burial in Cedar Hill cemetery.

BOY INJURED BY AUTOMOBILE

Had Alighted From Street Car and Was Struck by Reckless Driver From Cincinnati.

Carl Jackson, the 11-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. F. E. Jackson of 91 Penney avenue, was run over by an automobile Sunday which was being driven by a person whose identity could not be ascertained, save that he was a Cincinnati man and that the machine was of the Rider Lewis make. The little fellow had just alighted from a street car when the machine struck and knocked him down. A doctor was called and it was found that he had sustained a complete fracture of the left leg above the knee and was otherwise badly bruised. He was taken to the sanitarium where he passed a very restless night, but is resting as well as could be expected at this time.

WHAT IS VINOL?

It Represents Twenty Years' Work of Two Eminent Chemists.

After twenty years of study two eminent French chemists discovered a method by which the alkaloids or medicinal elements of the cod's liver might be separated from the useless oil or grease, retaining all the good of cod liver oil and dispensing with the bad, as the oil has no medicinal value. These medicinal elements, blended with tonic and a mild medicinal wine—make Vinol.

Vinol is ot a secret medicine, as its ingredients are printed on every bottle, and in all cases where the healing, strengthening influence of cod liver oil is needed, Vinol will give better results, for it contains all the curative medicinal properties of cod liver oil, but without the oil, and it is easily assimilated and acceptable to the weakest stomach.

For all run-down, weakened conditions, and to cure chronic coughs, colds and bronchial troubles, Vinol is unexcelled. We sell it always with the understanding that if it does not do all we claim for it, we will refund the money paid us for it. Frank D. Hall, druggist, Newark, O.

DEAD

To the world is many a poor wretch for many hours after indulging in the deadly fumes of opium. Hitting the pipe, as it is often called, has been the ruination and finally the death of many a poor unfortunate. In New York's Chinatown are some of the lowest dens of vice imaginable. In damp cellars under the streets, to which access is gained through evil smelling passages known only to the initiated few, are the real "hop joints." In these dives reeking with the pungent odor of opium smoke, the air heavy, hot and foul, the slave of the poppy goes to pay his deadly toll. Here he lies for hours in these terrible surroundings, and what the deadly drug does not accomplish, the foul air does, until he is soon a mental and physical wreck. The uninitiated never has had an opportunity to see a real typical opium den or even knows how "the pill is cooked" but you will have an opportunity to see and learn all about its uses and effects on Monday and Tuesday Oct 17 and 18, as it is another one of the features with Chinatown and the Bowery Pictures at the Grand theatre on those dates.
